Two Rounds for Roosevelt.
Wonderful Flying.
He Will Kill Himself.
Sen. Reed's Plank.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, June 28.

A FEW MINUTES before six, and the crowd is streaming from the big stadium. It has shouted and yelled, watched a few "almost" fights, has seen Gov. Roosevelt win his first two rounds, the Louisiana delegation contest, and the naming of Walsh, of Montana, for permanent chairman. Now it is going home to eat, talk even, perhaps, to THINK.

MORE IMPORTANT than any nomination was the exhibition by Army fliers on Chicago's lake front last night.

We have good times and bad times. Good times come from the generosity of Providence, bad times from our own stupidity, and weakness.

All that we possess depends on our ability to defend ourselves from attack IN THE AIR.

You would believe it, if you had seen those huge army bombing planes roaring in close formation over Chicago's skyscrapers in the dim twilight yesterday.

While Chicago's crowds looked on, admiring, the same crowd would have witnessed the complete destruction of its site and of a million lives, by poison gas and bombs, in the same length of time, had they been enemy planes.

IN THE MORNING there had been preliminary flying, planes zooming low, hundreds of pigeons on the lake front, fluttering wildly in all directions, filled with fear at the approach of those super-hawks.

W. R. Hearst, Jr., remarked that sea gulls seem even more frightened when he flies low over the water from his New York office to the far end of Long Island.

THE NIGHT display was most amazingly beautiful and daring. The great planes flew so close together, their wings seemed to touch. They took strange shapes, like a great sled, a Macedonian wedge, a long drawn out monster, roaring, made of many units, each keeping its place.

AND THE LAYING of a smoke screen, by one single plane, a screen high and wide enough to hide whole air fleets or a fleet of battleships, showed how hopeless attack from the ground must be, with swift planes above. In modern war, land armies and floating vessels would need squadrons of planes to hide and protect them.

STUPEFYING TO spectators was the performance of James Parker, an army lieutenant, "stunt flying" in the dark. The ship sent out a trail of fire as he flew, giving absolutely perfect imitations of a sky rocket.

He rose at frightful speed, high in the air, not "almost perpendicular," but as straight up as an elevator rising in its shaft, then, turning as a spent rocket turns, he dropped to earth like a falling spark.

M. C. Meigs, the All-America football star, who pilots his own plane, constantly, with his family on board, said of the daring Army man:

"Yes, of course he will kill himself eventually. But isn't it worth it, to do what he is doing for flying?"

If there is any nation across the Pacific or Atlantic, thinking it might be a good idea to attack this country, it should first send observers to study the fliers of our Army and Navy.

THE COUNTRY asks:

"What sort of platform will the Democrats hand their candidate and the voters?

One plank that ought to be in the platform, but probably will not be there, was written yesterday by former Senator Reed of Missouri and given by him to Louis Seibold. It reads as follows:

"We declare that there should be a strict adherence to the policy enunciated by George Washington, namely, that we should keep free from entanglement with the disputes of foreign powers.

"We further declare that there should be no cancellation of the indebtedness due us by foreign governments."

Ninety per cent of Americans old enough to vote and intelligent enough to think for themselves would vote for that plank. But platforms are not written for 90 per cent, but for 10 per cent of the population, where foreign debts and foreign nonsense are concerned.

CHARLES DANA GIBSON'S clever publication Life, publishes in Chicago's Herald and Examiner today a page on prohibition that should be printed in every newspaper. Gibson deserves public thanks for his convincing appeal to public opinion. Says he:

"Liquor can be had in open defiance to the law in any city, town or hamlet. Ask any bellboy or policeman. Wherever you go, a push button is open sesame to a bar."

Mr. Gibson asks his readers to send to the chairman of the resolutions committee in Chicago the following wire:

"Put repeal in your platform, I'll help you win."

WOMEN ARE in the news, everywhere, determined to count, apart from "mere production of babies." That production is their most important work, nothing else really counts, excepting creating a better race.

However, they must decide. One English woman, Lady Catharine Carnegie, crossed the English Channel yesterday on a surf board, drawn by a power boat, in 65 minutes. Miss Lily Copplestone, of New Zealand,

UTILITY PAY TO AINEY CHARGED

Head of P. S. C. Silent as Pinchot Sends Accusation Of Mitten Aide to Senate

HARRISBURG, June 29.—(AP.)—A charge by A. A. Chapman, of Philadelphia, that William D. B. Ainey, chairman of the Public Service Commission, during a period of six years had received $150,000 from the late Thomas E. Mitten, former head of the Philadelphia Transit System, was made public today by Gov. Pinchot.

The Governor said he will forward this information to the Senate Nominating Committee for whatever action it may wish to take.

It was reported at the Governor's office that Chapman was formerly personal secretary to Mitten.

Ainey, at his home today, said:

"I have nothing to say at this moment, but I will have a statement to make later today."

SWORN STATEMENT

The charges first received public attention 10 days ago when Lawrence C. Hickman, Philadelphia attorney, in a letter to the Governor said he had information implicating a public official in receiving money from Mitten management. Hickman said he had obtained this information from a client.

The Governor arranged to meet Hickman 10 days ago, but Hickman canceled the appointment and instead talked with Attorney General Schnader a week ago last Saturday in Philadelphia. He did not disclose his facts then, but did at a second conference in Philadelphia last Saturday.

Last night Hickman and his client, Chapman, came here and Chapman made a sworn statement in Schnader's office in the presence of Schnader, Deputy Attorney General Herman Goldberg, C. P. Addams, a notary public and employe of the Department of Justice, and Hickman.

CHARGES UP TUESDAY

The statement was given to the Governor who notified the Senate Executive Nominations Committee of its portent and advised that he would transmit the charges officially when it reconvenes here next Tuesday night.

In his statement Chapman said that checks drawn to A. B. Millar bi-monthly in the amount of $2,500, were indorsed by Millar and then returned to Chapman, who said he cashed the checks and gave the money to Mitten. He said it was his "understanding" that Millar at times delivered packages to Ainey but that he had no proof of that.

JURY HEARS LINDY TRIED SEA LEAP

Aimed to Swim to 'Kidnap' Boat, Witness Testifies In Quoting Curtis' Story

By JULIA McCARTHY
International News Service.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 29.—At one point during the sea hunt for the kidnapers of his baby, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tried to jump overboard and swim to the ship upon which he believed his son was held, according to the story told to William Haskell, Jr., newspaper representative, by John Hughes Curtis, on trial for obstructing justice.

Haskell, a prosecution witness, today testified Curtis had told him:

"The Colonel had to be restrained from diving overboard and swimming to the other ship."

CLAIMED CONTACT

Haskell further testified that Curtis declared:

"Alec (Lindbergh) and I will drop a bombshell that will startle the whole world."

The witness said that the "negotiator" in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case had told him he had made contact with the kidnapers off Norfolk, but that rough weather had prevented transfer of the baby from the kidnapers' boat.

At another conference with Curtis in jail here, Haskell said the shipbuilder discussed the "confession" in which he was said to have admitted the negotiations were a hoax. Haskell, under cross-examination, said:

"Curtis told me he would have signed anything in order to get some sleep. I asked him if he had really been in contact with the kidnapers and he replied indignantly: 'Yes, I certainly was, and the story is still to be told and is in Norfolk.'"

Meanwhile, a slender brown-haired, attractive young girl, a figure of mystery throughout the kidnaping case, was likely to step into the limelight today as a witness.

She is Betty Gow, Lindbergh nursemaid. Her testimony, expected to reveal untold chapters of the abduction which stirred the entire world, was overshadowed in the present case only by that of Col. Lindbergh himself.

REPEAL BATTLE GOES TO FLOOR; ROOSEVELT KEEPING HANDS OFF

GARNER DENIES DEAL

Speaker Denounces Rumor He'll Withdraw to Take Second Place

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The rumor that John N. Garner, of Texas, would withdraw from the race for the presidential nomination and accept second position on the ticket was flatly denied today by Amon C. Carter, of Fort Worth, Tex., at a joint meeting of the Texas and California delegations, both of which are solid for the Texan.

Carter said he had talked with Garner by long distance telephone and had been told:

"All such rumors are blankity-blank lies. I have been approached on the question of the vice presidency but have not considered it at all. Anything you folks want to do is all right with me, but don't put me in jail."

FIGHT TO FINISH

Carter said:

"We are not here to select a vice president. We are here to nominate Garner for President. We are fighting to the final ballot for Garner."

Carter presided at the joint meeting of Texas and California enthusiasts, which was attended by more than 500 persons.

William Gibbs McAdoo, California leader of the Garner forces, was not able to be present, but sent word through William Neblick, of Los Angeles, that the "chances for Garner were never brighter than they are today."

Carefully avoiding the antagonisms and bitterness which have already developed in the convention, the Garner managers have devoted themselves to a quiet, personal campaign, reflecting the wishes of the Speaker. Declaring that his first duty was in Washington, Garner declined to do more than permit his friends to boost him for the nomination.

REFERRED TO CHICAGO

WASHINGTON, June 29. — (INS.) — Maintaining a tight-lipped silence, Speaker John N. Garner refused today to confirm or deny reports that the Roosevelt forces have offered him the vice presidential nomination. He asserted:

"Any announcement regarding convention developments will have to come out of Chicago."

CONVENTION DELAYED

Test Victories Aid N. Y. Governor's Chances; Desperate Drive On

CHICAGO, June 29.—(AP.)—A heated dispute over prohibition embroiled the Democratic platform committee today and forced adjournment of the convention until late this afternoon.

After the majority of the platform subcommitteeb had agreed, 6 to 3, upon a plank calling for submission of a repeal proposal to the states, dissenters in favor of recording the party for repeal and immediate modification of the Volstead act took the fight for their proposal to the full platform committee and proposed to carry their battle to the convention floor.

Meanwhile, the convention session, called for 1 p. m. (Pittsburgh time), finally was called to order at 1:48 by Chairman Walsh. Listlessly it twiddled its thumbs and then recessed. Hope of getting the platform adopted and the nominating speeches started by mid-afternoon faded, and a night session seemed in prospect. The leaders still expected to get to the actual balloting by tomorrow.

'HANDS-OFF' POLICY

With the prohibition row growing out of control, the Roosevelt forces suddenly decided upon a "hands-off" policy.

James A. Farley, the Roosevelt manager, announced that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, "preferred the delegates to settle the issue in their own way."

Previously the Roosevelt leaders on the committee had been standing together for a plank submitting a repealer, but not specifically advocating repeal. The Farley announcement increased the likelihood of a free-for-all once the issue came to the convention floor.

Although Gov. Roosevelt himself is on record for repeal, his managers have not wanted the CHICAGO, June 29. — During the recess in the Democratic Convention this afternoon, Eddie Dowling and Will Rogers presided in place of Senator Walsh. The delegates appeared to enjoy their remarks more than any of the profound political pronouncements.

JURY TO PROBE BOWSER DEAL

Allegheny County's grand jury will investigate the $200,000 truck-hire contract Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor, obtained from the county last year.

This surprising revelation was made today after Bowser had been subpenaed to bring before the jury tomorrow all records pertaining to that job.

The action serves to revive an investigation which appeared doomed to collapse on Monday when Judges W. Heber Dithrich and Ambrose B. Reid ruled that Controller Robert G. Woodside was not authorized to reopen an audit of Bowser's dealings with the county.

Bowser had been held in contempt by the Controller for refusing to answer questions concerning the contract. Sentenced to jail, he appealed successfully to the courts through Attorney O. K. Eaton.

Bowser's trucks hauled the dirt for the new county airport. It has been said he received the contract, at 60 cents per ton, on order of the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. He sublet the work at a much lower figure to small truck owners.

NOVELIST SUED BY FILM STAR

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—(AP.)—Elsie DeMaine, film actress, testified yesterday in her damage suit against Dashiell Hammett, novelist and motion picture writer, that he attempted to attack her in his apartment.

Miss DeMaine, who is seeking $35,000 damages, said she called at the novelist's apartment for dinner, accompanied by her niece, Eleanor Gerg, 7. She told the court:

"Mr. Hammett was very drunk and he insisted on my drinking. I refused and he tried to make love to me. I resisted and he carried me into the bathroom. I fought him off and he beat me."

Hammett was not in court. The case was taken under advisement.

A former detective, Hammett is the author of several detective novels, including "Red Harvest" and "The Maltese Falcon."

5 HURT IN CRASH OF TROLLEYS

Four women and a child were injured when two Perrysville avenue street cars collided this afternoon on the North Side.

Windows were broken and other passengers were shaken when the inbound car "jumped" the switch to the outbound tracks and collided with a second car at the intersection of Perrysville avenue, East street, Baytree street and Woods Run avenue.

Her chest crushed, Mrs. Anna Tremellen, 60, of 221 Magnolia place, Mt. Lebanon, was rushed to Presbyterian Hospital.

Others were treated for minor injuries by nearby physicians. They were Mrs. Alice Yates, 48, and daughter, Helen, 7, of 500 Wabana street, West View; Mrs. Frank Tellian, 54, of 617 East End avenue, and Mrs. Mary Matters, 50, of 585 East End avenue.

Cardinal Guarded On Visit to Ulster

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland, June 29.—(AP.)—Cardinal Lauri, papal legate at the Eucharistic Congress which closed in Dublin Sunday, is in Armagh for a visit today under protection.

His route from the border of the Irish Free State not only was closely guarded, but it was diverted so that the prelate entered Ireland's ecclesiastical capital through a Nationalist, instead of a Unionist, quarter.

County to Face Suit Over Hall Site

Allegheny County will stand suit to force it to buy the site for its Town Hall, it was indicated after a conference between County Solicitor J. P. Fife and William Watson Smith, counsel for F. F. Nicola. Fife is reported to have said:

"I told Attorney Smith the county is not going to pay that $1,127,000 until the Supreme Court tells us to."

The court recently held the Commissioners had not exceeded their discretionary powers in contracting for the Nicola property.

Best Man Faints After Wedding in Cathedral

George A. Amos, Jr., of New York, was only the best man at the fashionable Diebold-Steitz wedding in St. Paul's Cathedral today—but he was affected more than the bridegroom.

When the procession made its way out of the church into the vestibule, Amos fainted. He was quickly revived, but visited a dentist later, having injured his teeth.

The marriage was that of Edna Marie Diebold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Diebold, of Aylesboro avenue, and John G. Steitz. Amos and the bridegroom are cousins.

Walsh, Shouse Brother Act Suggested by John W. Davis

By WILL ROGERS

CHICAGO, June 29.—John W. Davis, a man that knows what it is to be a good Democrat, made the best speech so far. He was speaking for Shouse or Walsh. He seemed to want to have the two of 'em to alternate, one act one week, and the other the next.

Will Rogers

He seemed to have no resentment over Walsh, for what Walsh got him into in 1924 at Madison Square. Davis must be broad-minded. And he has got humor too. It took a defeat to make a good comedian out of him.

Iowa couldent vote till they phoned to their kin folks in Southern California. Iowa kept fighting over how to vote on Huey Long, all the time the thing was over, and whether they voted or killed each other dident make any difference to the vote.

Holding up a big convention waiting to pick a chairman is like holding up a world series game waiting to pick out what prominent citizen will throw out the first ball.

I bet this convention cured Senator Dill from every trying to make two speeches on the same subject. They gave him seven and a half minutes to listen to his boos and hisses.

To Huey Long goes the credit convention to go that far. They have taken account of the prohibition sentiment among many Roosevelt delegations, particularly from the South. Their plank provides only that repeal be proposed to the states with no recommendation whether they shall take it or leave it.

AGREEMENT DELAYED

The platform makers, in their stuffy committee room across town in the Congress Hall, were having a time of it. They sent word that as a result of the dispute there, agreement on the full platform was so delayed that it was found impossible to present the campaign document to the convention at the time set for its opening.

The sub-committee majority proposal calls upon Congress "to submit immediately" to state conventions a repeal amendment to be voted upon to determine whether prohibition shall be retained.

The submission plank would return control of liquor traffic to the states in event of repeal, with federal protection for dry states.

And while the full committee struggled over the wording of that recommendation, Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, made public the following revised minority "wet" plank which he will take to the convention floor in behalf of 20 members of the platform committee:

"We favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"To effect such repeal, we demand that the Congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to purely representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal.

"We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon, and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states.

STATE PROTECTION

"We demand that the federal government effectively exercise its power to protect states against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

"Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead Act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue."

This proposal will get the support of Alfred E. Smith and Mayor Walker, of New York, in the contest.

As the convention proper idled, the Roosevelt generals maneuvered to consolidate and enlarge the advantage they won yesterday.

Everywhere about the capacious nest of candidates' headquarters the Roosevelt scouts were doing missionary work on the nomination itself. There was no tangible turn of importance.

Roosevelt 'Band Wagon' Call Sounded

From the Roosevelt camp today the siren call to "mount the band wagon" was directed especially at a small army of delegates from six populous states.

The six were New York, Missouri, Indiana, Texas, California and Ohio, having a total of 302 votes at this convention. They are a good many more than the number needed to make the New York Governor democracy's choice to take Herbert Hoover's place in the White House.

There were indications also that to some of the delegates the call from the Rooseveltians had already sounded like music.

Despite the plea from "Jim" Reed, the man they are pledged to for the presidency, 19½ of Missouri's 36 votes broke loose yesterday and went to Senator Walsh, Roosevelt choice for the permanent chairmanship.

The Missouri men have indicated they will follow instructions and give Reed their 36 intact on the first vote for the presidency. After that, a rush toward the Roosevelt standard is quite likely.

It was authoritatively reported 36 would go to Roosevelt, with the remainder split between Smith and Newton D. Baker.

There was concern, however, among the friends of Alfred E. Smith and other candidates over reports from close to Tammany that the Tiger delegates were seriously considering rallying to Roosevelt. Leaders of the organization already had said frankly they intended to swing to the prospective winner at the proper time.

GARNER DEAL SPURNED

Texas and California were soundly pledged to Speaker Garner, but rumors about the former were flying about like excited bees. One report was that Garner would be offered the vice presidency if he would swing the 46 votes of Texas in line.

Answering the report, however, Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth, told a meeting of fellow Texan and California delegates today that Speaker Garner had turned deaf ears to all overtures for "trades" on the presidential nomination.

Victories Give Boost To New Yorker

The moral effect of the Roosevelt margins piled up in yesterday's voting undoubtedly was being felt all along the line. Three times the convention clerks called the roll, and three times the New Yorker's managers gave visible demonstration that they commanded that majority which only once in recent years has failed to expand into the nominating two-thirds.

Huey Long's Roosevelt-pledged Louisiana delegation was seated by the convention, 638 to 514, and Einar Hoidale's Roosevelt-pledged Minnesota delegation, 658 to 492. Then, meeting the most militant challenge of the convention, save only that on the two-thirds rule, the Roosevelt managers elevated Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, to the permanent chairmanship, 626 to 528, over Jouett Shouse, of Kansas. A majority of the convention is 578, but it takes 770 to nominate.

Brown Retains Place On Assembly Ticket

William L. Brown will retain his Republican nomination for an assembly seat from the Thirteenth Legislative district, Judge James R. Macfarlane decided today in the contest between Brown and Albert B. Davidson. He dismissed the suit.

The contest, begun by Davidson after the primaries, was based on one district in Springdale, where ballot stubs had been torn off. The district gave 184 to Brown and 10 to Davidson. Judge Macfarlane held there was no proof of fraud.

SCRAP TREATY, BERLIN ASKS

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

LAUSANNE, June 29.—Chancellor Franz von Papen, of Germany, today announced flatly that his country could no nothing toward solving the reparations problem until the Treaty of Versailles is scrapped.

Simultaneously he declared that if the treaty should be scrapped, then Germany would "pay its part" toward world recovery "in the form of a contribution which would have as a natural condition complete establishment of the economic equilibrium of Germany and the world."

In a frank communique issued at the close of the Franco-German private reparations discussions, Von Papen declared revision of the Versailles treaty would be the only basis upon which Germany could aid in an economic reconstruction of Europe.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP.)—Chairman Borah, of the Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate today that since efforts at the Lausanne conference to settle France-German reparations question appear to have broken down it would be useless to hold the world economic conference planned for this year.

'Hooey' Long's Infighting Wins Tunney's Praise

By GENE TUNNEY

CHICAGO, June 29.—(INS.)—The convention got off to a rather slow start. A couple of the preliminary bouts over the seating of delegates whose credentials were questioned dragged along without much damage to either side until "Hooey" Long. The New Orleans firebrand, hopped to the rostrum in defense of his delegation and laid out for the full count Mr. Scott Lucas, of Havana, Ill., who questioned the method and legality of "Hooey's" delegation's appointment.

"Hooey" showed that he had not spent all these years berating people and things for nothing. He knows the art of infighting in debate and proved to the satisfaction of everyone present, particularly Mr. Scott Lucas, that oratorical slugging is right down his alley.

My old friend, Alfred N. Philips, former mayor of my home town, Stamford, Conn., lost a decision to Einar Hoidale, of Minneapolis, over the credentials of the Minnesota delegation.

In the main event of the session Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, succeeded in unseating Mr. Jouett Shouse, of Kansas. According to the arguments set forth by the supporters of Mr. Shouse, the gift of the chairmanship was given in Indian spirit. It wasn't for keeps.

RITCHIE, BAKER CAMPS SEEK PA. VOTES

Ex-President Cleveland's Son Pleads for Maryland Governor; Allies Parley

By MARK SHIELDS
Political Editor.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 29.—Insistent efforts are being made by backers of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, and Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, to capture some of the Smith delegates from Pennsylvania after the first ballot. Judge Henry Niles, of York County, is representing the Baker sentiment within the delegation, and Richard Cleveland, son of the former President, is acting for the Ritchie people.

Cleveland has been in conference with Kistler, but no conclusions were reached. Kistler was meeting today with various anti-Smith leaders, but the allies were unable to get together on a candidate behind whom they might throw their whole force in an effort to stop Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

ALLIES CONFER

While the convention was in recess during the afternoon waiting for a report from the Resolutions Committee fighting over the dry plank, the conference of the allies continued, with the Smith delegates in Pennsylvania a prize eagerly sought.

Former Mayor James P. Rossiter, of Erie, is to speak for Pennsylvania in seconding Smith, and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, of Pittsburgh, sister of Joseph P. Guffey, Pennsylvania Roosevelt leader, is to second the New York Governor. In Houston, in 1928, Mrs. Miller made a seconding speech for Smith.

On one thing only are the Pennsylvania delegates in harmony. That was an insistence that the anti-dry plank in the platform should declare for complete repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act. On this subject they were to stand as a unit, and Guy Bard, of Lancaster, Pennsylvania member of the resolutions committee, will bring before the convention the plank approved by the Pennsylvanians in caucus last Sunday night if there is not offered another plank substantially meeting the demands embodied in the resolution of Judge Niles.

STILL CLAIMING 66

Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania's Roosevelt leader, continued today to predict that Roosevelt would have 66 of the state's votes on the first ballot, and would be immediately nominated.

National Committeeman Sedgwick Kistler set the Roosevelt total at no more than 42, with the remainder preponderantly for Smith, who is his favorite.

On the vote to make Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, the permanent chairman, a Roosevelt move, 27½ votes from Pennsylvania were for Jouett Shouse, the Smith-Raskob candidate.

The best forecast today is that the vote will be 45 to 31 in favor of Roosevelt.

Bureau Here Scans Abuse of Tax Law

Action against retailers here who stocked up on supplies of goods free of the new federal taxes, and who are now selling the goods with the amount of the tax added to the price, was being considered here today by Internal Revenue Bureau officials. Under the tax law, the tax rests on the manufacturer and importer, and goods on the shelves of the retailer before the levy became effective June 21 are not taxable.

Walsh-Shouse Fight Compelled 'Bitter' Choice, Bowers Says

By CLAUDE G. BOWERS
International News Service.

(Editor's Note—This is the third in a series of stories on the Democratic convention by Claude G. Bowers, noted Democratic political writer, "keynoter" at the 1928 Democratic convention, and author of many books on the history of the Democratic party. Mr. Bowers' comment on the Democratic convention will be carried exclusively by International News Service.)

CHICAGO, June 28.—A day of vigorous fighting with battle-scarred veterans in the arena—a long day without a moment of release from the spirit of controversy. The very atmosphere of the vast hall throbbed with expectancy before Barkley called the convention to order. It was to be a day of testing.

The first committee to report, that on credentials, precipitated the fighting. Louisiana and Minnesota had opposing delegations. The convention groaned when an hour and a half was allotted to the debate. As in all such cases, there was no real interest in the arguments; not until Huey Long appeared to defend his delegation. Then the convention was silent.

The delegates have heard of Huey Long as a frothing gentleman given to wild statements and wilder gesticulation. It was expected that he would "put on a show." There was nothing of the sort.

A serious man in white began by appealing to the convention to hear him for his cause without interruptions by applause that time might be conserved. There was no show. There were no wild statements. Nor gesticulations. What the convention heard was a plausible argument couched in excellent English delivered with an air of sincerity and conviction.

Not Weakest Spot

The vote seated the Long delegation, and the Roosevelt forces rejoiced. One of their foremost leaders told me immediately afterward that this would be the weakest showing made by them in the convention. Another verified it. But it was not to be.

The battle over the permanent chairmanship was to reduce the strength of the Rooseveltians without depriving them of victory.

It was a bitter decision that the politicians forced upon the convention. On the one side Senator Walsh—who with his great mind and devotion to the public interest has rendered services of incalculable value to the country. He has made history; he is a part of it; and it is an inspiring part.

And yet there were delegates that would have voted for him for the presidency who under the circumstances could not vote for him for chairman—and did not.

On the one side was Jouett Shouse, who during three years of tireless and astute activity has rendered party service of immeasurable value unequaled by any party manager since the days of the Jacksonians.

'Bitter Choice'

I say it was an unfair and bitter choice that the politicians forced upon the delegates. I felt it myself. It never should have been.

Instantly the enemies of Roosevelt began rejoicing. Where was the two-thirds vote? But here again it was not a perfect test of strength. I personally know one state that voted solidly for Shouse that contains at least 10 Roosevelt votes.

But even so, the decisions to rely upon the old two-thirds rule, together with this vote on the chairmanship, unquestionably has given encouragement to the forces aligned against Roosevelt. There are so many cross-currents that it is impossible to determine the full significance of the vote.

PLATFORM TEXT READY FOR SUBMISSION

Repeal Submission Plank, Farm and Unemployment Relief Issues Stressed

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The Democratic platform sub-committee finally reached a majority agreement today upon the wording of a prohibition plank which will propose re-submission of the Eighteenth Amendment to the people for retention or repeal.

A minority report, however, will be submitted by the anti-drys which seeks to place the party on record as favoring repeal.

Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, speaking for the majority, said:

"It is a straightforward, clear plank of submission of the Eighteenth Amendment to the people."

ROOSEVELT CONTROL

As written by a Roosevelt-controlled sub-committee of nine, the platform propounded a conciliatory unemployment relief program, a strong farm relief policy and a bold declaration for a 25 per cent slash in federal expenditures as a means of insuring governmental economy.

It called for a broad flood control program, an international silver conference to alleviate the monetary situation, a downward revision of the tariff, an international conference to remove trade barriers and federal regulation of interstate power companies through the Interstate Commerce Commission. It contained a powerful plank for better regulation of the banking business and greater safeguards for bank depositors.

The other important planks include:

The specific remedies proposed include a demand for "intelligent control of surpluses, so as to maintain for the American farmer the benefit of the domestic market, thereby assuring him his cost of production, plus a reasonable profit." It further called for a "better system for the financing of farm mortgages through farm bank agencies at low rates of interest and on an amortization plan." It also condemned the Federal Farm Board for "extravagances" and "its speculation in farm products," but made no mention of abolishing it.

CORPORATIONS

This surprise plank would put the Democratic party on record as favoring "legislation to control holding companies." It would call for congressional enactment to compel all corporations, engaging in Interstate Commerce, to make public the amounts of bonuses and commissions paid for all purposes and the amounts spent for promotions.

It further would ask that all interstate corporations publish in newspaper advertisement at regular intervals the amount of money they actually have invested in their business. Another section called for a strict public accounting of the assets behind each issue of foreign bonds, when floated in the United States. It would also condemn any activity by the state department to encourage the sale of foreign securities in this country.

UNEMPLOYMENT

The plank proposes four steps for the relief of unemployed. First, it declares for federal aid to states when their credit facilities are exhausted in providing relief for those in need. Second, it calls for a federal program of public works "in the public interest" for relief of unemployed. Third, it suggests "planning in advance of public works" to be utilized in times of depression. Fourth, it declares for the "principle of the short work week and its application to the federal government."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

It calls for a firm foreign policy, upholds the sanctity of treaties, the settlement of disputes by arbitration, steps to make the Kellogg anti-war pact effective and urges ratification of the world court, but only upon the reservations now pending in the Senate. It was silent as to war debts.

ECONOMY

A bold declaration for a 25 per cent reduction in federal expenditures formed the backbone of the plank. It called for strict economy at Washington, the abolition of useless offices and elimination of all extravagance. It was silent on the bonus.

Demands Senate Act To Stabilize Dollar

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(INS.)—A demand that the Senate act on the Glass bill to stabilize the purchase power of the dollar was made today by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho.

It would expand the currency by one billion dollars through the extension of the circulating privilege to government bonds held by national banks.

BRISBANE VISIONS ROOSEVELT AND WALSH AS TICKET

RITCHIE SEEN IN CASE OF DEADLOCK

Voting on Convention Floor Shows Factions Holding to Their Delegates

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO CONVENTION HALL, June 29.—Written in Universal Service headquarters with 10 telegraph instruments, and as many NOT noiseless typewriters to help you concentrate. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, taps one typewriter, while photographers' flashlights play around her like heat lightning in summer.

At this moment, in the hall and on the platform, the fight for permanent chairman goes on. If Senator Walsh wins, it is a Roosevelt victory. If Mr. Shouse wins it is an anti-Roosevelt victory.

Gov. Roosevelt has just won the first important round of the battle. The delegates of Huey Long, Senator from Louisiana, named by himself "The Kingfish," are seated by a vote of 638¾ against 514¼. Huey Long's delegates are Roosevelt delegates, therefore the vote establishes the fact that at this moment, 4 o'clock Chicago daylight saving time, Gov. Roosevelt has 638¾ votes in the convention. He lacks only 140 votes of a two-thirds majority. It should be possible, against a divided opposition to get those votes.

Long Has Personality

The greatest good fortune of earth's children, says Goethe is PERSONALITY. Huey Long has it. He comes up to speak, dressed all in snow white cotton cloth. That suits his locality. He is a powerful man, and should you annoy him, you could not repeat all of his remarks to your refined lady friend. Real energy resides in that personality.

Above his sunburned brow rises a spiral curl of hair, floating upward, like incense smoke from an ancient tripod. Not long ago, before he was converted, he referred to Gov. Roosevelt as a "poor fish." But he is a Roosevelt man today and when "the kingfish" is for anybody, he goes all the way.

A roar of applause welcomes him, and other roars reward his efforts. He proves that it pays to SAY something, even though the majority may disagree with you, and some may hate you. Huey Long would tell you just how much money you might have. Then he would have the government take most of it away from you. Later, perhaps, he will get richer, his horizon will change and he will enlarge your margin of possessions.

Not More Than $50,000

Edward I. Dunn wires today from San Francisco the following plank:

"Pledge Congress to place a maximum figure of wealth to be accumulated by any one individual, to $50,000."

The writer thinks the sum too small, for it takes big power to do anything worth while.

In about eight minutes begins the vote for permanent chairman that will again test Roosevelt's following. John W. Davis has finished talking for Shouse. He, you remember, ran against Coolidge. He was well received today.

The music is assorted and electric, if that is the right word. The band plays, sweetly, that good girls' song, "Far above Cayuga's waters, with its waves of blue, stands our dear old alma mater, beautiful to view." Then it plays "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here." That song including the rugged question, "What the H—— Do We Care," was more popular than the nice girls' song.

Now They Are Voting

Five minutes of five, Chicago daylight time and sustained roaring from the perspiring convention tells you that the voting for permanent chairman is under way, Walsh against Shouse. If Walsh of Montana wins, Gov. Roosevelt wins, and how the "Stop Roosevelt" crowd will stop Roosevelt after that, is hard to guess.

But politicians are resourceful and those that do not want Roosevelt have not given up. Four hours ago the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Ostrowski, of St. Josaphat's Church in Chicago, began his prayer, "Oh, Lord, with diffidence and hesitation and fear we stand before Thee, in these days of stress and danger." In somewhat the same spirit, both sides are waiting the result of the poll now going on.

It is over. Walsh is elected permanent chairman. A good speech by Senator Dill of Washington, helped bring that about. He told the convention some of the things that Walsh has done, about power rascality, the Teapot Dome affair and other features of our high power financial life. The vote is more important to Roosevelt than to Walsh, for it gives the Roosevelt men control of the nominating machinery, and Walsh will know how to enforce his rulings. He has eyes under heavy, dark, bushy brows and a voice that leaves you in no doubt as to his meaning.

Walsh For Second Place

If there is no upset, it might be ROOSEVELT AND WALSH. That would sound well, Walsh would be far enough west, in Montana, to suit the wide-open spaces. And there are other considerations. It has been yelled, not whispered, that part of the strong early Roosevelt strength was based on anti-Catholic prejudice, the desire to stop Smith before he could get started.

That belief, justified or not, might injure Roosevelt in the voting. But with Walsh, who is a Catholic for vice president, there would, presumably be an end of that feeling. And, with Providence acting mysteriously, to say nothing of life's uncertainties, Walsh if elected might change from vice president to Catholic President.

However, all that may be counting without Walsh himself. He could have been nominated for Vice President in 1924 and refused, just as Hiram Johnson could have been Vice President with Harding, and President in Place of Coolidge.

There are wise ones who say that if they SHOULD stop Roosevelt, the compromise would be on Ritchie. You might make a note of that.

Before closing, you must hear about the lady from Missouri, who sang to the crowd, so sweetly. Mrs. Conklin was her name and she shares with the canary bird the power to sing with a sweet, natural expression. You never saw a canary make faces when it sings. Men and women usually do make faces and thus spoil the song.

Airplane Motor 'Lost' From School

It may not have been stolen, but O. H. Babcock, Jr., wants his $1,500 airplane motor back, and asked detectives today to find it. The return address is 5867 Wilkins avenue.

It was last seen, he reported to police, in the aviation school of R. V. Trader, 118 Sixth avenue. Two men who moved other equipment from the school after it closed are being sought, the detectives said. Babcock, an aviation student, had left the motor for repairs, police said.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IN NEW YORK HEARING FROM BATTLEFRONT

What the Candidates Are Doing

Associated Press.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT—The radio announcement "Walsh wins" brought a broad smile to the New York Governor's face. Sitting in his armchair, with his coat off and a stack of state papers before him, he followed the convention proceedings.

ALFRED E. SMITH—Battling among the delegates for Jouett Shouse yesterday, the former presidential candidate decided not to make a speech on the subject after all. Between conferences, he went to a refreshment stand, saying:

"I want a hot doggie."

JOHN N. GARNER—The Speaker of the House remained on the job at Washington, cleaning up the remainder of his legislative duties.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE—The Governor of Maryland, who is descended from an associate of Thomas Jefferson, got another big hand when he appeared at the convention. He stood on his chair, waved his straw sailor.

WILLIAM H. MURRAY—"Alfalfa Bill" emerged from a conference in his Chicago sanctum to stand in his socks and regale scores of visitors with stories. Said one woman:

"I came hundreds of miles to see that man; now I'm happy."

JAMES A. REED—The former Senator from Missouri, after hours of battling to hold the lines, saw his state's delegation break from his leadership and give a majority to Roosevelt delegations in contest fights.

GEORGE WHITE—The Ohio Governor, lured from Columbus by the sniff of battle, was invited up on the platform when he arrived at the convention. There were wild shrieks as he went forward, on the arm of W. A. Julian.

NEWTON D. BAKER—President Wilson's Secretary of War stayed away from the convention, saying little. He is one of those looked on as a possible "dark horse" nominee.

Japanese Oppose Naval Reductions

TOKIO, June 29.—(AP.)—The navy office has notified Vice Admiral Shushin Nagano, chief naval advisor of the Japanese delegation at the World Arms Conference at Geneva, that it is strongly opposed to nearly all the naval reductions proposed by President Hoover, it was learned today.

The foreign office, however, was not ready to instruct Ambassador Matsudaira regarding its attitude on the Hoover plan.

crossed in the opposite direction in 63 minutes.

Devoted women here hand out tracts asking you to stick to prohibition and you say with John Huss, Sancta Simplicitas.

Other ladies bring you ice cream in a restaurant, wearing little caps labeled "We want beer."

Very gentle ladies, well dressed, sell the Christian Science Monitor with unselfish persistency that would make any publisher wonder. If you tell them to keep the change they will not do it, but give you more Monitors, saying:

"Give them to friends."

THE SADDEST story comes from the thirty-second story of a Chicago hotel. A young bride, married last Sunday, wept when her husband said he did not think she could make him happy, after they had been married only one day.

She replied:

"I can only give you all I have."

She took off her wedding ring and engagement ring, handed them to him, and jumped through the window to death.

She suffered but a moment. He will suffer while he lives.

Siam's King Signs Order for Dictator

BANGKOK, Siam, June 29.—(AP.)—A constitution providing for a limited monarchy, with a temporary dictatorship by the Peoples party, was promulgated yesterday after it had been signed by King Prajadhipok.

The document, outgrowth of a brief revolt last week that deprived the King of his absolute powers, provides that the dictatorship shall be replaced by suffrage when the people have been educated in the responsibilities of self-government.

Three on Base When Huey Long Speaks

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

CHICAGO, June 29.—When we made the Louisiana Purchase in 1805 we never thought we would get Huey Long with it.

But he was there in the bundle under three layers of excelsior ready to pop out and spread the alarm through every Middlesex village and farm. Maybe it was Paul Revere.

Huey has been rubbing this convention against the grain and scoring glorious victories. Like Caesar, he came, he saw and he cuckooed.

He is a man's man. The ladies like him. He likes himself. Its unanimous.

When he gets up to speak there are always three men on base. Yesterday he turned the convention into a spiritual seance with the head ghost rapping on the table for order.

When he views with pride he gets cross-eyed and his eyebrows grow a foot.

When he races around the aisles he can spot a Republican 10 yards and catch him on the first hill.

Huey is a dramatist, and he will go far if he doesn't knock himself out with one of his own gestures.

In two days he scored three victories. He met the national committee and whipped them to a white blister. Then he broke the blister.

He appeared before the credentials committee, gave them the aces and kings and finessed a celluloid trey through a forest fire.

Then he arose on his hind legs in open session and sewed up his opponents with the famous Huey Long dropstitch. This stitch defies the efforts of the world's greatest basting puller.

Yesterday he was the biggest man in the Democratic party. He won one of the greatest arguments we ever heard. We don't know what it was all about. Neither did Huey.

It seems that the sovereign if somewhat argumentative state of Louisiana sent three delegations to this convention. Two of these delegations were controlled by Huey and he wanted all three.

He got what he wanted, created the high spot of the day. And wasted the afternoon.

There is only one thing we didn't like about his 11 speeches. He referred to books and pamphlets for his facts and figures. Whenever he made a statement he proved it by cold print.

Huey, that's magnificent. But it ain't politics. Back home in Pennsylvania we did it right. When the facts followed the truth we discarded them both.

Wife to Help Hunt Minnevitch at Sea

First reports said she was with Minnevitch, for whose safety grave fears are entertained since no reports were received from him since he left on a small schooner.

Roosevelt Remains Calm As Democrats Battle

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29.—(AP.)—Outwardly at least, there could hardly be in the United States a calmer Democrat than Franklin D. Roosevelt is these days.

He had nothing to say last night on a report from Chicago that one of the lieutenants of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, had predicted his nomination on an early ballot.

He smiled and said nothing as he heard over the radio the roll call that gave victory to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, his candidate for the permanent chairmanship.

He spent part of the afternoon press session teasing the newspapermen about the rumors that he may fly out to Chicago. He told them:

"There's one way I could get out to Chicago that you fellows haven't guessed—submarine."

In his oak-panelled office in the capitol, in the rambling executive mansion surrounded by lawns and trees, Gov. Roosevelt goes quietly about his daily routine—seemingly trying to forget he stands a chance of being nominated for President.

His tanned face frequently breaks into smiles, and his ringing laugh sounds carefree as he jokes with the newspaper correspondents. When they called on him late yesterday they found him dictating a memorandum about the plumbing in a state institution—while the radio a few feet away indicated the balloting on the Minnesota delegation was about to begin.

When the voting on the candidates gets under way tomorrow, the Governor will be listening in with Mrs. Roosevelt and their young sons, Franklin, Jr., and John.

GIBBONS BARES PLANS TO HALT ROOSEVELT

Foes Whispering of G. O. P. Program to Brand Him "Weak Sister" of T.R. Tribe

By FLOYD GIBBONS

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Hello everybody.

Don't forget the bullet-proof vests today, boys and girls.

The Al Smith gang and the Jim Farley gang and the Albert Ritchie Chesapeake Dusters have parked their armored sedans outside the Democratic convention hall and somebody's going for a ride.

Mr. Gibbons

Yes, sir, the strawberry festival flavor of this convention evaporated last night. From now on out it's going to be acid straight.

I mean the Stop Roosevelt movement has just started. Al and the other boys are standing right there on the track flagging him. Either he'll stop or the opposition's political futures will be draped over the telegraph poles and the stop - look - and - listen posts.

G. O. P. STRATEGY

And here is something I picked up circulating all over the big convention hall and the unofficial convention halls at the Congress Hotel. It's the biggest broadside that's been fired against the New York Governor. And it purports to be the revelation of secret campaign plans to swamp Roosevelt if he should get the nomination.

Seems that the anti-Roosevelt sleuths found out about the Republican war plans in Washington and they're already using them on the convention floor—but silently, of course, and not for the convention record.

Here's what the Roosevelt stoppers are telling Frank's delegates. It's what the Republicans have up their sleeve, according to his opponents.

TEDDY'S IMITATOR

In the first place, Republicans plan to point out that Franklin isn't the real Roosevelt. They're going to accuse him of trading on a name—a glorious old Republican name—Teddy's name.

Then they're going to build up their attack on the charge that the Governor is an imitator.

They're going to call him a "spurious" Roosevelt.

They're going to hang a trade mark on him—"the weak sister of the Roosevelts."

That's what these hard-boiled gangs say. And then some more.

If Roosevelt should get the nomination, they insist, the Republicans will call him a No. 2 Roosevelt company. You know, in theatrical parlance, that means a road company that plays the wash-bowl and pitcher circuits.

ALICE ON WARPATH

And the story goes that the real Roosevelts will rise right up and fight Franklin. Alice would take the road and the stump to prevent a more or less distant relative from horning in on the glory of her father. Teddy would be called back from Manila and attack.

Well, that's the stuff that's being fed the Roosevelt shock troops. And a report from Washington yesterday said Herbert Hoover is just hoping that Frank is nominated, because he thinks he would be the easiest Democrat to beat.

Yes, sir, the social activities are all over at the Stadium. From now on it isn't what the orators say. It's the answer the adding machine gives.

It's not so much who the party of Jefferson and Jackson wants.

It's what the boys in the back rooms will have.

'Kingfish' of Louisiana Spurns Vice Presidency

CHICAGO, June 29.—(INS.)—Charley Curtis, attention!

Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana "Kingfish," wouldn't have your job as vice president of the land of the free if an all-Democratic Senate, a diamond-studded gavel and a harem of Miss Americas were added to the present office equipment.

All the Southland's indignation converged in Long's powerful voice when the suggestion was made to him. "Senator Kingfish" got vexed. He exclaimed to his interviewer:

"I wouldn't have the job at all; I would't be Vice President of the United States."

Because he might be committing political suicide?

"I wouldn't be vice president of anything."

"But they're talking about you for the position today in the hotel lobbies since that great speech you made at the convention yesterday."

"I don't believe it and I don't care a damn anyway, because I wouldn't take it and why don't you write that down?"

So the investigator did.

COUNCIL VOTES CITY PENSION SURVEY

English Scores Commerce Chamber Official's Hint City Faces Bankruptcy

Employment of an actuary to study municipal pensions was authorized by Council today after a hearing in which H. H. Hook, chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee on pensions clashed with Councilman W. Y. English over the prospect of city "bankruptcy."

Controller J. P. Kerr will name the actuary, by a motion of Councilman Robert Garland, which was adopted.

In the discussion, Hook said:

"We want our city employes to know they are going to get their pensions. Careful conservation of funds is necessary to that end. Many cities are bankrupt."

English shouted:

"I am getting tired of hearing about cities going bankrupt. Can you name one?"

"Chicago is one."

"That's not true. The city had a fight with the board of assessment. Chicago is not bankrupt. The Chamber of Commerce here has put out statements that Pittsburgh is facing bankruptcy. I want to stop that."

REALTORS SEE BETTER TIMES

CINCINNATI, June 29.—(AP.)—Delegates to the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards were told today to keep their heads up, for better times are coming and they will profit.

There is no mystery about the real estate cycle, said Maj. A. B. Kissack, of St. Louis, who added:

"Even a meager knowledge of its workings gives the assurance that again will come the upward swing into brighter times."

W. C. Miller, of Washington, assured the delegates that "real estate will emerge from the present unstabilized markets as the most secure and stable commodity in our entire economic structure."

Harland H. Allen, Chicago economist, said that efforts should be made to readjusting values to the new lower level of prices.

FEDERAL COURT FEES SLASHED

Drastic cuts in witness and juror fees, court expenses, and the dismissal of two employes were ordered for the Federal court here today. Annual leave with pay has been eliminated.

The order is effective July 1.

The fees of jurors were cut from $4 to $3 a day, with no change in mileage.

Witness fees were slashed from $2 to $1.50 a day, and the $3 for subsistence suspended.

Bailiff's pay was cut from $5 to $4.50, while the crier and court messenger were dismissed.

The traveling expenses of judges were reduced from $10 to $6 a day.

Affected by the dismissal order is James Walsh, who for 18 years was a bailiff and for the past year court crier, and William Allen, judge's messenger, who has served the court as such for 25 years.

2 YOUTHS HELD IN HOLDUPS

Two Swissvale youths, said by county detectives to have admitted numerous holdups in the Swissvale-Rankin district, were held for court today following a hearing last night before Justice of the Peace S. H. Wilson, of Swissvale.

The pair, William Ertman, 25, and Henry Wolford, of 1912 Wayne street, Swissvale, were held in the county jail pending hearings before Alderman Thomas M. Geary on charges they staged a series of holdups in Honeymoon Circle, Schenley Park. Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren said.

Prince, Grandson Of Ex-King, to Wed

BRUSSELS, June 29.—(INS.)—The engagement of Prince Gabriel Bourbon Deux Siciles, grandson of the late King Ferdinand II of Sicily, to Princess Cecile Lubomirska, daughter of Prince Casimir, was officially announced today.

Receivership Asked For Garage Company

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar set Friday to hear arguments in an equity suit filed by William R. Gillespie, trustee, and the Continental Bank and Trust Company, of New York, co-trustee, asking for appointment of a receiver for the William Penn Garage, Wylie avenue and Tunnel street. The bill of complaint avers that the garage concern has defaulted in payment of interest and principal on certain bonds.

French Airman Sets New Chute Record

VILLACOUBLAY, France, June 29.—(INS.)—Rene Machenau, French airman, today executed a successful parachute jump from an altitude of 8,000 meters (approximately 26,000 feet).

The aviation company employing Machenau estimated his jump at 7,800 meters, apparently beating the former world's record of 7,300 meters.

FATHER DUFFY BURIED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—Military and civil honors marked the last rites today for Father Francis P. Duffy, wartime chaplain of New York's 69th Infantry, since changed to the 165th.

Throngs lined Forty-second street in the vicinity of Holy Cross Church, where the body of the famous priest lay in state, to watch the start of the military procession to St. Patrick's Cathedral in Fifth avenue.

The coffin was flag-draped and placed atop an artillery caisson. The priest's rideriess horse Captain, his dead master's boots slung reversed over the saddle, walked behind. Then came the regiment, and behind it veterans of the old war unit in civilian clothes, some of them from far away.

2 Skeletons Found In Ruins of Pompeii

POMPEII, Italy, June 29—(AP.)—A tragedy of 1900 years ago has been revealed by further excavations of the house of Menander in the ruins of this ancient city. In a bedroom lay two skeletons. Beside one was a leather purse containing 100 pieces of money.

Evidently the master of the house, seeing impending destruction by the tide of lava, leaped from his bed, called to his wife to follow and snatched his purse. But both were overwhelmed.

SEEK TO REVISE BUS SERVICE

A revision of the transportation system of the Beaver Valley within the next two or three months was indicated before Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission.

This developed at the Beaver Valley Motor Coach Company's hearing to temporarily abandon operations between Rochester and Colona. W. F. Baum, Beaver Falls, general manager of the coach company, said the arrangement might be temporary, but the Beaver Valley Traction Company, which owns the motor coach concern, undoubtedly will be forced to make changes. Slackened operations in the regions covered by both is given as the cause. Baum showed the coach company is operating at a loss of about 75 per cent.

Attorney R. E. McCreery, Monaca's solicitor, of which borough Colona is a part, said Monaca may protest against the proposed withdrawal of the service, but would advise the commission within the next 10 days.

NATION'S NEEDS POINTED OUT BY WRITERS

Convention Correspondents Interviewed by Mrs. Owen; Rotarians Hear Senator

By RUTH BRYAN OWEN
Member of Congress and Daughter of William Jennings Bryan
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, June 29.—While the Democratic convention in the crowded Stadium was wrangling over the seating of contesting delegations the Chicago Rotary Club listened to some of the head-liners give their idea of what America most needs today.

I missed all the early proceedings of the convention yesterday listening to Senator Bailey, of North Carolina, point out to the Rotarians that the great need of today is faith. It was somewhat disquieting then to have Congressman John McCormack give it as his considered opinion that a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and a modification of the Volstead Act are really the crying needs of today.

Back again in the press gallery, where, by the way the most interesting group of people in the United States is sitting, I carried on a little inquiry of my own.

Arthur Brisbane said:

"What the country most needs is a diagnosis of the real situation and a cure for it. People ought to know more about their government."

Gene Tunney said:

"What the country needs now is a Democratic administration and a cut of 35 per cent in governmental expenditure. It also needs the billion dollars revenue which would be derived from legalizing the sale of alcoholic beverages."

Claude Bowers said:

"We need a return to Jefferson concepts of state and society which carries with it the establishment of political equality and social justice."

Floyd Gibbons said:

"What we need most is to put people back to work."

Eleanor Patterson went thoughtful for a while and hadn't fully decided all the angles of the country's need when it was time to get lunch, but she did say:

"Maybe we need a dictator."

PRESIDENTIAL GREETING

STANLEY HAUSNER — PRESIDENT HOOVER

Flier Hausner, Polish-American aviator forced down and rescued at sea in his attempted U. S.-to-Poland flight, pictured as he was received at the White House by President Hoover, to whom he was presented by New Jersey's Senator Kean and the Polish Ambassador. DAVIS FAVORS BROTHER ACT of being the first to split the party and get em acting like Democrats. I'll bet when judgment day comes, things will go along unusually quiet till all at once there will be the blamedest fight and it will be over what to do with Huey. By golly, he made a good speech today. He won his own game.

Oh, yes, some preacher prayed and you talk about a pessimist and a calamity howler. If the world don't come to an end before the end of the week this cleric is going to be broken-hearted. He also read his prayer. I wish some preacher could preach "add lib." You would think if a man studied the preaching business all his life, he could memorize a few little apt sentences to prolong a political gathering.

Then Mr. Barkley, today's toastmaster, said, "We will be entertained by a sone" by somebody. Well I had never heard that announcement at a convention before, and as I had just been talking to Irving Berlin, the best song writer in the world, why I just figured that this was one of his new ones he was having put over. But the minute it started I knew it wasent. It was a kind of a "pep" song to offset some of the predictions in the prayer.

GETS FEMININE ANGLE

Went around to kinder get the feminine angle today. Had a fine old time chat with Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who looks lovely. Then of course I found Alice, who, after all, is about as much Democrat as she is Republican. In fact, she is wise fo both sides. Seemed like old Houston and Madison Square times to visit Mrs. Al Smith, always smiling, always pleasant.

Then Mrs. McAdoo, who has been in the midst of stirring times, even in her short span of life. Mrs. Ed Hutton, of New York, wife of the man that runs those little innocent blackboards with numbers on 'em that keep getting littler.

As you go into the stadium there is a board with all the names of the states and how much they have contributed to the campaign. Looks exactly like a stock market board. I thought at first the Democrats were mayby on the "curb." I knew they couldent make the big board.

Who do I run into looking at the board to see if he could get any of his money back but my best friend, Barney Baruch. He is going to have some news for me tonight. He is one of the men that meet in the little room where the candidates "are" nominated. No candidate will accept the vice presidency. By Saturday all of em will be grabbing it.

The best candidate the Democratic party can nominate you dont hear anything of. Its Owen D. Young, the most able man in both parties.

They wouldent let em nominate Calvin Coolidge at the Republican convention so I am going to try and do it here. He might be a Democrat. Nobody ever did hear him say.

Newsie Beaten, Man Fined as Beggar

Charles Brenner, 50, no home, was drunk, Patrolman James Penworthy testified in Central Police Court today. When a newsie at Liberty avenue and Ninth street refused him a dime, Brenner struck him, the officer said. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg fined Brenner $25 or 30 days to the workhouse.

Parking on Wharves Is Declared Legal

The city is authorized by law to use the wharves and river fronts for parking, an opinion drafted today by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt declared. The opinion was an answer to demands of the Pittsburgh Garagemen's Association that the city retire from the parking business, declaring it worked a hardship on garage and parking enterprises.

Second Auto Test Will Open Friday

Approximately 450 official garages and service stations in Allegheny County today were prepared for Pennsylvania's second 1932 mandatory automobile inspection campaign which begins Friday morning, the road service department of the Pittsburgh Motor Club announced. The campaign will continue during July, August and September with checkup by state police officers during the last three months of the year.

Dry Agents Seize Whisky in Tent

Prohibition agents went into wide-open spaces yesterday to seek liquor violations. Their trail led to a large vacant field off Pioneer avenue, Brookline, where they discovered a 12x18-foot tent and seized seven cases of beer and many bottles of whisky and gin, they reported. Joseph V. Joyce, who, according to the agents, has been taken into custody three times in the last two months, was arrested.

FUGITIVE HELD, TERM DOUBLED

Up in Alaska, a little woman sits today clasping a child to her bosom and doubtless wondering what is to become of them both, as well as another child expected soon, while her husband is getting accustomed to prison routine at the Western Penitentiary in Woods Run. This is his first day of his second imprisonment.

Back in 1921 Charles Ohls, alias John L. Roberts, robbed a hardware store in Luzerne County. He was sentenced to from 5 to 10 years. In June, 1925, he was transferred from the Eastern Penitentiary to Rockview prison and 19 days later escaped.

Two months ago United States Department of Justice agents in Alaska located him. He was working as a miner, had married and apparently was living the life of an exemplary citizen. He was arrested and brought to Washington where Parole Officer J. A. Gaffney took charge and returned him to Bellefonte. Judge M. Ward Fleming doubled his original sentence and yesterday Ohls was received at the local penitentiary.

HIKING SCOUTS TO VISIT HERE

Loibl, German consul in Pittsburgh, and later a reception will be held for them by the Rev. Carl A. Voss, pastor of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street.

HEARST STOCK BRIGHT SPOT IN BUSINESS

Three-Year Performance One of Most Notable In Corporate History

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—One of the brightest spots on the business map of the nation today has been the 1932 showing of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc.

The American Weekly Magazine, one of the 12 great properties in the Hearst Consolidated group, is experiencing the biggest volume of advertising linage and revenues for any month of June since it was first established half a century ago in 1882.

More impressive is the fact that the American Weekly Magazine receives $16,000 for one full page of color advertising and $32,000 for a double page.

ADVERTISING GAINS

The cream of national advertisers—the social register of America's wealthiest industrial enterprises—patronize the American Weekly. More than 150 of the most important national advertisers, situated in all sections of the United States, are included in this inspiring group of productive concerns.

The American Weekly Magazine has the largest circulation in the world, reaching 5,500,000 families with an audience of 20,000,000 readers.

In 558 of America's 995 cities and towns of 10,000 population and over, the American Weekly Magazine concentrates 70 per cent of its circulation. In addition, more than 1,750,000 families in thousands of communities, large and small, are numbered among its subscribers.

Likewise, the 10 great metropolitan newspapers owned by Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., have made substantial gains in circulation during the last 10 months.

EIGHTH DIVIDEND

Within the past fortnight Hearst Consolidated distributed its eighth consecutive quarterly cash dividend since the Class "A" 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares were originally offered to the public and the thousands of employes in the Hearst organization.

Nation-wide diversification of the 12 Hearst Consolidated properties is one of the dominant factors that insures the safety of principal, dividends and earnings for the great army of Hearst investors throughout the United States.

The 1930-1931-1932 performance of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has been one of the most notable records in corporate history.

The added hour, with WCAE the first Pittsburgh station on the air in the morning and the last to sign off at night, heralds a series of late broadcasts including dance music by outstanding orchestras throughout the country.

A concert orchestra under the direction of Graham Harris and a dance band led by Billy Artz with dramatic interludes starring Sylvia Field replace the Sherlock Holmes dramatizations on NBC networks including WCAE and KDKA beginning tonight. The new musical series is inaugurated tonight on KDKA at 9 when the concert orchestra, with Sheridan Russell, celebrated English 'cellist, as guest artist, is heard. Tomorrow night on WCAE at 9:30, the smooth, stringed rhythms of Artz's orchestra replace the detective stories formerly heard over that station. The new series is billed the "Boat Club Dance."

He confided at the studio the other day that he doesn't like talking pictures. ...He forwarded the following plaintive explanation: "A fellow has to be too quiet. Can't talk, can't say anything but the lines, and we have to wear rubber soles and heels."

BIG TASK FACES MANAGERS OF ROOSEVELT

'Band Wagon' Influence Is Counted on to Aid in Task Of Getting Needed 2-Thirds

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, June 29.—Franklin Roosevelt's chances for winning the Democratic presidential nomination are better than they appeared to be Monday.

The victories scored by his supporters yesterday in perfecting the permanent organization of the nominating convention established that fact.

It is reasonably certain, however, that he will not be nominated on the first ballot under the two-thirds rule, which will govern the contest.

UP TO MANAGERS

His ultimate chances will turn upon one of two eventualities: (1) the ability of his managers to produce 770 of the 1,154 delegate votes and (2) the maintenance of the consolidated opposing units easily holding the veto power.

Roosevelt's managers are counting heavily upon the "band wagon" influence. They predict that before the actual balloting begins there will be important recessions from delegates instructed or otherwise bound to Reed, Ritchie, White, Garner, Byrd and potential candidates not officially entered.

The opposing groups supporting these contenders appeared confident last night that they will be able to hold their veto lines and eventually wear down the Roosevelt strength, which reached its maximum (656) in the three tests yesterday.

SHRINKAGES DENIED

Reports of shrinkages in both the Roosevelt forces and those of other contenders which filled the hotel corridors last night were aggressively challenged as soon as advanced. They are more interesting than convincing. A fairly comprehensive survey of the battlefield reveals a confused state of mind among the commanders of all divisions.

Charges of improper motives and methods, and threats designed to influence wavering delegates in both camps, naturally crop out in all discussions among rival leaders. The dove of peace is absent.

It is not unlikely that some of these may be repeated when the intensive stage of the fighting is reached tomorrow, when balloting for the national candidates is scheduled.

It would be useless to speculate as to the chances of anybody except Roosevelt at this writing. If he should increase his present vote on the early balloting, the "band wagon" influence would tend to help him the rest of the way.

SMITH NEVER KEENER

Throughout his professional career Albert E. Smith never displayed greater political acumen than he has during the last 24 hours. He seems to have voluntarily relinquished the role of leader of the opposition to Roosevelt and is contented to really sit in as one of a board of directors which is trying to prevent the bankruptcy of the Democratic party.

The amiable consent of the "happy warrior" (whose medals have all been restored) to be guided by the sober judgment of responsible leaders has brought about a difference in his standing in the party. Curry, the Tammany boss, shares it.

Since becoming a member of the directorate Smith has limited his aggression to opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment and the upholding of the two-thirds rule by the operation of which it is hoped to bar the nomination of Roosevelt.

GIVES NO PREFERENCE

As far as can be learned, he has not indicated a preference for any one of the contenders outside of New York.

Leaders informally co-operating with Smith to defeat his old pal and policital ward concur in the statement that the titular national leader has not suggested a name for the presidential nomination.

They do not believe he will do so. If he should, these leaders are equipped with an adequate supply of acid that will be useful in testing the availability of any man proposed by him.

There seems to be no question in the minds of the leaders who are sincerely trying to find a candidate and construct an acceptable program that Smith will be fully content if the rejection of Roosevelt is accomplished.

Mr. Hearst Tells Stand On Democratic Issues

Universal Service

NEW YORK, June 29.—The following exchange of telegrams was published yesterday in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

William Randolph Hearst,
San Simeon, Cal.:

1. Do you favor abrogation of two-thirds rule in Democratic convention?

2. If Garner cannot gain nomination, whom would you favor?

3. Would you support Roosevelt if nominated?

4. Would you support Baker or Ritchie if nominated?

BROOKLYN EAGLE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

1. Yes. It is at variance with every Democratic principle.

2. Garner.

3. I will support any genuine Democrat, but I will not support any candidate of Wall Street and the international bankers nominated to perpetuate the Hoover policies and make the interests of the United States subservient to the interests of foreign countries. If the public want the Hoover policies, they should elect Hoover.

If they do not want the Hoover policies, they should have an opportunity to protest them, even if a new party has to be started to give them that opportunity. This might be an ideal time to start the Progressive Democratic party, with leaders who have at this critical time enough intelligence to be progressive, enough courage to be democratic and enough patriotism to be devotedly American.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Walsh as Chairman Maps Party Course

CHICAGO, June 29.—(AP.)—With a call to the party to gird itself to lead the country back to better times, Senator Walsh, of Montana took over the permanent chairmanship of the Democratic convention late yesterday by the decisive voice of a majority of the delegates.

The man who swung the gavel at Madison Square Garden in 1924 for the longest meeting in the history of the party assailed the Republican policies that have controlled the government for the last three administrations, giving full measure of criticism to high tariffs, fiscal policies and the attitude he said the government had assumed toward industry and agricultural relief.

CITES OBSTACLES

Pointing out difficulties in the way of commerce recovery, he said:

"None will question that in the struggle for resuscitation the barriers to international trade arising from ill-considered readjustment of national boundaries, the revived and intensified national hatreds and embargo tariffs and similar restrictions are major obstacles. The occasion called for the most liberal international co-operation. Too late it has come to be realized that our prosperity is intimately bound up in that of the rest of the world.

"Having become the greatest creditor nation on earth, with all Europe our debtors, we demanded that they pay, and proceeded to build higher our tariff wall not once, but twice, in less than 10 years, in effect adding to their obligation, and diminishing their ability to pay.

"Retaliatory tariffs were to be extracted and they have come."

WEALTH FAVORED

He continued:

"The fiscal policy of the Government has shown a constant subserviency to the wealthy and powerful, whose taxes in a season of Hectic prosperity were repeatedly reduced, leaving a huge burden of public debt unliquidated, the interest of which cuts deeply into the diminishing revenues of the treasury in these times of stress, to say nothing of the effect on the credit of the government now sustained only by the imposition of taxes approximating those rendered necessary by the exigency of the World War."

He called the "continued prostration of agriculture" the "tragedy of the last century," and said:

"With callous indifference every appeal for relief was ignored or rejected until, yielding to political necessity, a substitute for the measures originating with the representatives of the languishing industry was brought forward by the administration and passed, of the scandalous history of which, in its operation, the whole world knows."

HITS BIG FORTUNES

Walsh said that "another weakness in our economic system scarcely less obvious" was the unequal distribution "of the amazing accumulation of wealth garnered in the 10-year period from 1920 to 1929 inclusive and its concentration in relatively few hands."

He called for a return to the policies of Jefferson and in concluding cited a long list of Democratic notables to prove that the Republicans have "no monopoly of talent." He said:

"It is no particular compliment to any individual in the galaxy of statesmen whose names have been prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination you are about to make for president of the United States to say that his public career has shown him to be at least the equal of any one of the last three incumbents of that exalted office."

RADIO MEN JOIN IN AD TALK

For perhaps the first time in the history of radio broadcasting here, representatives of all the local stations were present yesterday at a meeting sponsored by the Advertising Club in the William Penn Hotel, at which Howard Howlett, of WHK, Cleveland, was the speaker.

Mr. Howlett in his address declared that he believes that 75 per cent of the American radio public loves jazz music, pointing out that the majority of the programs present jazz selections.

He also expressed the opinion that the advertisers who make the programs possible have the right to devote at least two minutes of the broadcast to their products. In closing, he told of the early days of radio development in Cleveland.

Ill Man Ordered To Jail for Trial

Confined in his home with a heart ailment since his arrest, June 16, on charges of forgery and embezzlement, Joseph Bartha, of 764 Frayne street, former auditor for the Verhovay Aid Association, was to be taken by ambulance to the hospital in the County Jail today to await trial.

Bartha, who was charged with embezzling $23,131 of the association funds, was examined by the jail physician, who pronounced him strong enough to make the trip.

HUTTON CALLED 'SISSY' AT TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—(INS.)—"It's anybody's ball game now!"

That was the opinion today of David Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist of Angelus Temple, following a feverish court session in Myrtle Hazel Joan St. Pierre's $200,000 heartache suit against him.

Aimee's husband was called a "big fat slob," a "sissy," a "liar" and a "mamma's boy" by Miss St. Pierre, according to testimony of a dignified Pasadena woman, Mrs. Nan Anthony Norbury.

Hazel's own sister, Mrs. Gladys Cassill, declared Hazel often imbibed wine, remained alone with a man in her boudoir clad only in a flimsy nightgown, and at another time had partially disrobed before several men.

"I don't remember," was her answer to a question by Miss St. Pierre's attorney concerning a purported $5,000 defense offer to testify against her own sister.

REDS RAIDED, FOSTER HELD

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—(AP.)—Hauled from the tonneau of an automobile as he stood to address a throng in the Plaza, William Z. Foster, leader and presidential candidate of the Communist party in the United States, was arrested yesterday as police bombed a milling crowd with tear gas.

Five other men who attempted to promulgate their leader's cause in the clash with the police red squad were clapped into jail as promptly and three young women who stayed behind to jeer the perspiring officers joined them. The crowd dispersed.

The arrest of Foster occurred as nearly 4,000 persons, swarming about the Plaza, which is located in the older downtown section, watched with laughter and boos. The Communist leader was booked on suspicion of criminal syndicalism.

Millionaire Asks 50-Cent Loan to Pay Taxi Fare

CHICAGO, June 29.—(AP.)—A tall Texan hopped from a taxi and yelled to a friend:

"Lend me 50 cents."

It was none other than Jesse Jones, of Houston, Tex., who fixed up the Democrats for the 1928 convention.

And what's more, he had just returned from a meeting of financial giants who had arranged a loan of around $70,000,000 to a Chicago bank.

TAX PAYMENTS NEAR NORMAL

In spite of the depression there is no appreciable difference in the amount of taxes collected this year compared with the same period in 1930, according to the records of County Treasurer Robert S. Cain.

Since tax collections started in May and until June 25, a total of $1,369,225.31 has been collected. For the same period in 1930, the sum of 1,386,212.29 was collected, a decrease of but $16,986.98. Comparative figures against last year's collections are not available because with the passage of the 50-cent poll tax legislation last year collections were about 60 days late in being made.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

Today, next to the last day of the month of brides, has two weddings in its crown of glory. Likeable Edna Marie Diebold, daughter of the Alfred J. Diebolds, of Aylesboro avenue and Fox Chapel, became the bride of William Nicholas Steitz, son of the John G. Steitzes, this morning at 11 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral.

This afternoon Elizabeth Miller, daughter of the William Booth Millers, of Sewickley, is to marry Kirtland C. Gardner, Jr., of Coraopolis Heights, in the Miller garden.

A lovely satin and lace costume was worn by Edna Diebold at her wedding this morning, with her father giving her in marriage. Pink peonies, pink and blue hydrangeas against a background of ferns, decorated the altar.

Her gown of white satin had a deep Alencon rose point lace yoke reaching in the back to the waistline, from which her peacock styled train fell. The lace extended over the shoulders to join the long white satin sleeves, ending in a point over the hand.

Her veil of tulle, with insets of Duchess lace from her mother's wedding gown, cascaded from a cape of lace, also from her mother's bridal costume. And clusters of orange blossoms were caught in the tulle of the veil.

Orchid Bouquet

Her bouquet, all white flowers, was made up of orchids, orchid spray, white roses and lilies of the valley, tied with white tulle and satin, and showered with white rosebuds.

Natalie Diebold was her sister's maid of honor, wearing an Empire gown of turquoise blue chiffon in Lelong mode with a high waistline. On either side, from a diamond-shaped inset of the chiffon in the bodice, the dress was shirred over the shoulders, with the shirring ending in long streamers extending to the slipper-tip hemline. A cape effect over the shoulders suggested sleeves.

Her hat, early Empire in mode, too, was of turquoise blue straw, covered with turquoise blue organdie. It had a very shallow crown, and the brim was turned up on one side to reveal the hairline. A cluster of pink and blue rosebuds in front and a bow in back formed the trimming. And she carried Parnet yellow roses, blue delphinium, tied with turquoise blue satin, and showered with yellow rosebuds.

Bridal Party

There were six bridesmaids, Anne Steitz, sister of the bridegroom; Elizabeth Buckley, of Wilmington, Del.; Virginia Murphy, Marie Kaye, Eleanor Dunlevy and Mary Burns.

Their dresses were of shell-pink chiffon and their hats of shell-pink straw and organdie in the same style as the maid of honor's. They carried pink roses and blue delphinium, tied with turquoise blue ribbon, and showered with pink rosebuds.

George A. Amos, Jr., of New York, was his cousin's best man, and Alfred J. Diebold, Jr., brother of the bride; Ferdinand H. Diebold and Elmer A. Diebold, Jr., cousins of the bride; Francis Wilson, George Kinsley and John Sheedy were ushers.

Mother In Blue

At the ceremony and reception, held at the Pittsburgh Field Club, the mother of the bride was in turquoise blue crepe with a jacket effect, trimmed in silver fox at the cuff line, with a hat of blue straw and lace, and the mother of the bridegroom in beige crepe with brown for accent. Both had corsages of orchids.

At the wedding breakfast in the Field Club, the bride's table was U-shaped with the center filled with ferns and pink and blue hydrangeas arranged about a fountain, pink peonies and blue delphinium were arranged at intervals around the table, lighted by candelabras.

After the honeymoon, Mr. Steitz and his bride will be at home in Edgewood about July 17.

Depression Held Cause of Big Work Gain

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In order that all available funds might be used for the nursing service, the board of directors of the Public Health Nursing Association of Pittsburgh has not issued a printed report this year, but instead has circulated a mimeographed statement of its activities for the year. The circular calls attention to the change in character of the cases visited—that although 1931 was a "surprisingly healthy year," economic conditions have undoubtedly been the chief factor in causing an increase of 45 per cent in the total number of cases for the year. Morbidity cases and maternity cases increased and health supervision decreased. This last was more than compensated for, however, in the 42 per cent increase in attendance at the child health conferences where the mothers were given instruction and advice.

During the year 43,103 cases were cared for; 207,642 visits were made; 815 child health conferences were held with a total attendance of 24,250; 18,516 school and 337 clinic visits were made and numerous group meetings, including infant welfare conferences, mothers' club, home nursing and first-aid classes and pre-school children roundups were held. Of the visits made 72.7 per cent were free and 2.3 per cent were pay or part pay.

COTTON PAJAMAS AND BEACH DRESSES FAVORED FOR COUNTRY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 29. — Since beach clothes have been taken into the home, French women watch carefully the type of wardrobes that appear at southern seaside resorts. If a hundred or more women on the Riviera wear yellow coats for a week or so, yellow coats become the country fashion all over France; if cotton pajamas are worn frequently at Juan-les-Pins, they immediately appear in the gardens of Normandy; if flannel suits are popular on the boardwalk at Cannes, flannel suits immediately appear on the golf courses of Chantilly.

* * *

BEACH CLOTHES, in France, have thus come to mean any type of informal clothes that are worn out-of-doors, or in, during the warm months. French women are wearing backless cotton dresses and beach hats this year at their country places, rather than the usual summery type of frock.

* * *

THE CURRENT vote for popularity among this type of clothes divides itself between cotton pajamas and what are called "beach dresses." Many women who have never worn the more masculine type of garment have taken at once to the dress which looks like a pajama but which really is a skirt-dress.

* * *

VERA BOREA, the young Italian designer, is among those who do not approve of pajama fashions. She designs beach clothes having in mind the comfort of the pajama, with the added femininity of a skirt. One of her frocks is pictured—showing how the suspender straps get a backless effect, with a fitted waistline, and how a little jacket serves to make the dress suitable to wear on occasions when a low back would be out of place.

* * *

IT IS FASHIONED of a coarse blue Italian cotton, whose revsersible side shows a darker coloring.

THE PAJAMAS, from Lyolene, are of uncrushable white linen, made in jumper style, with a puffed-sleeve guimpe of red and white dotted gingham. The red and white belt, of soft leather, is twisted in an unusual way.

Imaginary Heroes of Many Girls Are Too Perfect

Why hasn't Barbara's "Mister Right" come along yet? Why is it that she can't "fall for" any of the boys she knows?

It isn't because she doesn't know plenty. It isn't because she's one of those gals that boys forget. In fact, she is popular. She goes to proms and parties, and she doesn't lack for cut-ins or dates.

Then what is the trouble? She can't figure it out.

"Sometimes," she wails, "I get so lonely."

Can you help her?

"Dear Miss Sally:

"I am writing to you just because I feel it is the natural thing to do. You seem to get to the bottom of things, and I think maybe you can help me to do that, and find a solution of the problem that is bothering me.

"I am 19, a high school graduate, at present a working girl, with a year of night college. I have a perfectly wonderful family, and I can't say I don't have a good time, for I do. But there is something I can't understand.

I would like to meet some nice boy that I could care for. I have waited, it seems for ages, hoping, but he doesn't seem to come along. He just doesn't present himself in the shape of any of the boys I meet at the proms and parties I go to.

"I get so lonely at times. It isn't that the boys don't like me. I do have dates—plenty of them. But—oh, it all seems so vague, some way. I can't understand it.

TEASED BY BROTHER

"Did you feel like that once, too? If you did, please tell me what you did about it.

"My brother teases me, and tells me I'll be an 'old maid,' but I don't want to be that. I want to meet someone I can love, someone I shall love forever, and marry him and have babies, like my mother did.

"Maybe I haven't explained myself very clearly, but I am always in a tense, expectant mood, and I don't like it a bit. What shall I do? Please help me. What is wrong?

"BARBARA."

What'll you do?

First, quit worrying, honey. Worrying won't do you a bit of good. You have plenty of time at 19 to find Prince Charming—if you're able to recognize him when you see him.

NEEDS NEW INSIGHT

For I suspect that is largely your trouble. You aren't really looking for a flesh-and-blood man. You are looking for some impossibly perfect hero you have created out of your own imagination, and naturally, being only human, faulty creatures like yourself, the b[illegible] you know don't measure up to that picture. No live boy ever [illegible], so let's cut the picture out.

Get down to brass tacks. Begin to look at the boys you know with a new insight. Learn to know them as regular humans. Learn to know their ambitions and dreams, their dear, foolish weaknesses, and sympathize with them. Then life won't feel "vague" any more. It will become a living, fascinating adventure, and you will find your part—and your man—in it.

As a matter of fact, there is nothing tragic or unusual about feeling vague at 19. Life is very big, and old, and complicated; and you are very new, and young, and muddled. You don't know just where you're going. But as you learn to know and appreciate people, as you learn to see more clearly, that vagueness will leave you.

So get going, honey! And here's wishing you happiness!

Make Time to Love Your Parents, as They Loved You, Urges Fay King

By FAY KING

No matter how busy or popular you may be, you must make time to give your parents some of the love and devotion they so deserve.

Think sometimes of the years when you were little and helpless and so dependent upon their care.

You were of little or no interest to anyone outside of the little home you had come to bless then.

And no outside interest was more important to them than you. There were times when you fretted and cried and were a great worry.

But they did not love you less, they loved you more.

How many times they thought and talked of the great comfort you would be to them—now!

Are you?

Love them now as they loved you then!

Contract Bridge

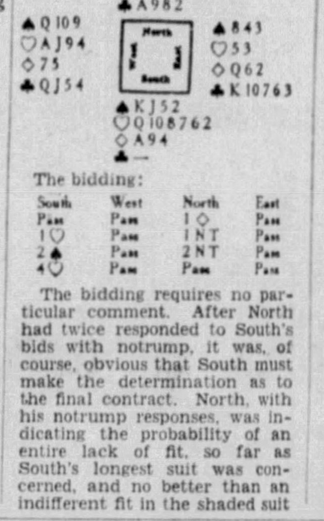
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Shortening Trumps for an End-Play

In the recent metropolitan team-of-four bridge tournament, in which some 16 teams were entered, an opportunity for a brilliant and unusual end-play was seen and embraced by Samuel Fry, Jr., who held the South hand below and whose partner was Waldemar von Zedtwitz. The manner in which the hand was played was both unusual and accurate, and of the 16 players who held the South hand, Mr. Fry alone found the correct solution when the final contract was gone in hearts.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding requires no particular comment. After North had twice responded to South's bids with notrump, it was, of course, obvious that South must make the determination as to the final contract. North, with his notrump responses, was indicating the probability of an entire lack of fit, so far as South's longest suit was concerned, and no better than an indifferent fit in the shaded suit offered by South as an alternative. South, blank in clubs, was not anxious to play the hand at notrump, in view of his partner's two minimum responses.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

While it is true that three notrump or five diamonds can be made, provided the diamond Queen is located, play of the hand at four hearts was extremely interesting.

West opened a club, which was won in Dummy with the Ace, South discarding a diamond. The King of Hearts was then led. West, of course, winning with the Ace. Another club was returned, which South ruffed. The Ace and King of Diamonds were then cashed, and a club led from Dummy, which was trumped in the closed hand. South then led a spade to the Ace in Dummy, and returned Dummy's last club, which was trumped with the 8 of hearts in the closed hand. South then led the Queen of hearts and followed with the 10, forcing West into the lead. West then cashed his remaining heart, but was forced to lead from his minor tenace in spades, conceding the Declarer the twelfth and thirteenth tricks.

By accurate planning and clever end-play, Mr. Fry lost only three trump tricks and fulfilled his contract.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am a divorcee of 25 and I am going to be married again some Sunday afternoon during the fall. Will you please give me the correct dress for the bride and the maid of honor?

2. What kind of bouquets should they carry, if any? H. C.

1. The best form for you and your attendant would be for you both to wear afternoon dresses or ensembles. Of course if you wish you may wear your going-away costume. But undoubtedly you will prefer to have something a bit more dressy than this. How would you like a lace ensemble, dress and coat, of a shade especially becoming to you?

2. A small corsage bouquet is very becoming worn with this sort of costume. You might have a few gardenias, or a few gardenias and some small roses, in your corsage and your attendant's flowers would be something of the same informal kind.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

If Baby Swallows Pin, Try a Bronchoscope

Not long ago I visited an interesting exhibit composed of objects which children and adults had swallowed, including pins, nails, coins, buttons, beads, toys, bones, nuts and various other things. All of them had been removed by the aid of a comparatively new instrument called the bronchoscope.

Dr. Copeland

This is an electrically lighted instrument which enables the physician to look into the deep parts of the throat, the windpipe and the bronchi of the lungs. It was invented in 1897, but only within recent years was it so perfected as to minimize the dangers and discomforts of its use.

It has been estimated that previous to the use of the bronchoscope, 40 per cent of the persons who had foreign bodies in the breathing apparatus, died. Today, as a result of this splendid advance in medical science, the death toll has been reduced to less than one per cent.

The intake of foreign bodies in most cases is purely accidental, but avoidable in almost every instance. Unfortunately, babies and young children are usually the victims. Dr. Chevalier Jackson, who is the leading authority in this field, says that 90 per cent of such accidents are due to carelessness. He enumerates "carelessness in putting inedible objects in the mouth and carelessness of parents and nurses."

Children should not be permitted to place toys or other small objects in their mouths. Never allow a baby to play on the floor where there may be pins, buttons, nuts, marbles or other small objects which it can pick up and put in its mouth.

Adults as well as children should be warned against the danger of holding things in their mouths while riding in a jolting automobile. In fact, holding things in the mouth is a habit which should not be encouraged at any time. Many a child will place a pin or other object in his mouth only because he has seen his mother do the same thing.

Careless and hasty eating is a frequent cause of trouble. If the food contains a foreign object, such as a pin, bone, or button, it will be swallowed if the food is quickly eaten.

When a foreign object is swallowed and lodges in the throat, do not become hysterical. Often the object can be easily grasped with the fingers. It is always best to call a physician. If it is in the throat, the doctor may grasp it with a long pair of forceps. It is has been inhaled into the windpipe, it will be necessary to use a bronchoscope. Your physician will advise you.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Boys Insist on Vacating Room

"Really, it does not matter at all," I said. "Have you anything to do right now?"

"Nothing, but take those things out of your room."

"Then suppose we all go up and have a regular 'pack fest'," I suggested. "I'll look over your things as you get them out—I might as well do it one time as another, and anything that's ready for school we'll put into the trunks. The rest I'll put in the chest in my room, so that I can have them mended or cleaned or whatever they need. And you can put all your suits into that closet in the hall near my room. There are only your summer things, anyway, you know. All the rest are put away in mothproof bags, so we really won't have much to do."

UNTIDY ROOM

"But we don't want you to work, Aunt Madge," Bill protested vigorously.

"I'm not going to do anything," I told them, laughing. "I'm simply going to tell you what to do."

"That's better," Hank said, and there was that in the timbre of both boyish voices which warmed my heart. I rose from the hammock, slipped a hand into an arm of each of them and walked with them up the stairs to their room.

"I'm afraid it's in an awful mess, Aunt Madge," Bill said shamefacedly, as we entered.

I mentally agreed with them as I looked around the room and remembered a line added to their report from the whimsical and kindly headmaster of Worcester.

"We should like to call attention to the somewhat jumbled and tumbled housekeeping in which William and Henry indulge."

WILLING WORKERS

But it was distinctly not my cue to utter any criticism at this moment of their gallant and generous gesture.

"It will be in a worse one when we get all these things out for inspection," I told them, with a little laugh, and was rewarded by seeing their faces lighten with relief, as they began the age-old task of "bringing order out of chaos."

They were unskilled workers, but they made up in willingness what they lacked in knowledge, and in a surprisingly short time we had sorted their belongings into chests, trunks and suitcases.

"There isn't even a necktie left," Bill said jubilantly at last, wiping his perspiring face. "And we have a lot of our packing done for Worcester. What do you want us to do now, Auntie Madge?"

"Cool off, first," I told them, smiling. "Then you can help Jim carry these trunks and boxes to the rooms where they are to stay while the guests are here—and then—I'm going to have a shore dinner for our guests tonight. How would you like to get me some of the ingredients?"

"Oh, boy!" Hank exclaimed. "You mean go after clams and lobsters and scallops and mussels?"

WANTS TO DRIVE

"That's exactly what I mean," I told them. "Take Jim with you down to the bay."

"Aunt Madge?" Hank's tone was hesitant, insinuating, and I, knowing what he wanted, smiled to myself.

"Yes, Hank."

"May we drive?"

I hesitated for the fraction of a second in my answer, for this question of younger drivers is a mooted one, and Bill struck in abruptly.

"No, we're not going to drive. You know you're not old enough anyway, Hank, you haven't got your learner's license yet. And, I don't need to use mine if you can't. So there's no need to bother Aunt Madge about it. She has enough on hand."

As always, I noted, Bill was less self-centered, more considerate of other people than was his younger brother. With the deliberate purpose of testing the younger lad, I said quietly:

"What did you mean by 'we,' Hank? Were you asking permission for yourself or for Bill?"

Movie Center Sets New Styles

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 29.

As further proof of Hollywood's growing importance as a style center, one of the national magazines may shortly offer it's women subscribers patterns of gowns worn by some of our more glamorous stars.

The idea is to secure original sketches from the studio designers and print them about the time of the picture's release. Thus, the film company gets a plug for its production and the magazine acquires a feature that will go big with the cinema fans.

Constance Bennett

Just how big may be guessed from the hundreds of letters studios receive from women who would copy gowns they admire on the backs of their favorite film stars.

As motion picture styles always are in advance of the times, these studio designs would be up-to-date, regardless of the time elapsed between the making of the picture and the date of its release.

And there's many a girl in the land who would like to own a dress like the one Joan Crawford or Constance Bennett wears in her latest picture.

BOULEVARD TALK

Hollywood is wondering whether Director George Cukor or a mysterious young man named Ryan is the fair-haired boy with Ina Claire. Young Ryan met Ina's train before it reached Los Angeles, but the vivacious comedienne is seen everywhere about Hollywood with Cukor . . . Saw Zasu Pitts lunching at the Roosevelt Roof with Ed Woodall, the tennis shark . . . Pretty Barbara Kent very much tete-a-tete with Harry Eddington at the same place . . . That luncheon companion of Lita Grey Chaplin's at Levy's Tavern was Nick Jory, her manager . . . Just to prove they're still friendly, Greta Nissen and husband Weldon Heyburn were dancing together at the Frolics . . . Also Dorothy Lee and the ever attentive Marshall Duffield . . . Some airplane salesman has pocketed a nice commission from the new open job that Harry Bannister has just purchased . . . Seventeen stars are included on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new list. All three of the Barrymores—Ethel, John and Lionel—rate stellar billing. Also Helen Hayes . . . Something to think about is the fact that Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery top the recent popularity poll conducted by the Hollywood Herald . . . And among the more important items of the day is El Brendel's beef about a gopher in his yard which only comes out when you have your best clothes on and can't chase him.

CUSTOMS STOP STAR

Mention Mexico and the Red flag is out for Tala Birell, Universal's foreign charmer. After paying a visit to Ti Juana, the European actress was stopped at the border by Mexican authorities because she had forgotten the vise extension on her passport. It took plenty of long-distance telephone calls, etc., to straighten the matter out.

Universal, by the way, still searches for the right story to introduce this actress as a star. "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" has been shelved for the nonce, also the proposed adaptation of Zola's "Nana."

Bride

"Young Bride," starring Helen Twelvetrees, begins a three-day run in the Sheridan Square today.

Child Movie To Be Made

Filming of the "Our Kiddie," all-talking picture to be made by Warner Brothers in association with the Philadelphia Company, will begin shortly, F. Herrick Herrick, Hollywood director, is visiting all Warner Brothers theaters in Pittsburgh searching for talent.

Any child in Pittsburgh, not over 16 years of age, is eligible to make application to appear in this comedy and application cards will be furnished by any manager of a Warner Theater in Pittsburgh. The application must be signed by both the applicant and the parent of the child. Part of the application must be left in the theater and the applicant holds the other part and it will entitle him to admission to the Stanley Theater Sunday, July 10, at 2 o'clock, when Mr. Herrick will select the cast.

Beginning next Friday Mr. Herrick will appear in the Stanley four times daily to explain how Hollywood makes talking pictures.

Sky-Writing at Debut Of 'Dark Horse'

A "sky projector," known also as a sky writing machine, which projects legible writing on to clouds, or distant buildings, will be demonstrated in front of the Warner Theater tomorrow night before and after the state premiere of "Dark Horse," featuring Warren William. Beginning at 8 o'clock there will be entertainment in the lobby of the Warner. Although invitations have been issued, showing of "Dark Horse" also will be open to the public.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

THERE ARE two girl friends on Broadway. One is Beth. The other is Alice. When I say they are girl friends, I mean they are friendly for this season only. Next year will tell a different story.

It's strange about these Broadway girls. Thrown together in a show or a cabaret, they will usually pair off for the time being. They will dine together, go out with the same men, harmoniously rap all the other girls in the show, exchange the deepest of confidences and act generally as though they were two devoted sisters.

This will go on for perhaps a month or six months or a year. But the day will always come when you will meet one on Broadway and inquire for the other. And then will come the inevitable response.

"Don't mention her name to me!" she will cry. "She's a terrible creature. You know how I tried to help her? You know how much I did for her? Well, what do you think she had the nerve to turn around and do? Listen—"

But let's get back to the episode about Beth and Alice. It's as true a story as you will ever hear. I have merely switched the names.

Both these kids worked in the same attraction. Meeting when the show was in rehearsal, they roomed together on the road and decided to take a small apartment in town after the show had registered a hit.

For some four months, Beth and Alice shared the same sleeping quarters. Each knew everything the other did. And they both spilled plenty that they'll both deny saying in days to come.

One night last week I was seated in Dave's Blum Room. Beth was seated in the booth next to mine. A man, flushed with excitement, came running to her from the street.

"Beth," he cried wildly. "Go home right away. Something terrible has happened. Alice has taken poison!"

I looked to see Beth's reaction. You'd have done the same thing. Nothing like a good old fashioned reaction every once in a while.

Beth's reaction was amazing in the extreme. She did not rise to her feet immedately. Instead she picked up a glass of water and sipped it slowly.

"So she finally did it," she mused. "She always said she would. I told her that guy would drive her crazy in the end. But she wouldn't listen to me. O, well."

The nervous gentleman was beside himself.

"For heaven's sake, Beth," he cried, "come on home right away. She's taken poison, I tell you. All sorts of doctors are working on her."

Beth rose to her feet and slipped into her coat. She turned suddenly.

"Tell me," she said. "Did Alice leave any kind of a note?"

The nervous one shook his head in the negative. And Beth gave forth a gesture of disgust.

"I might have known it," she cried angrily. "That girl has threatened suicide so many times that I'm tired of counting them. Each time she made that threat, she promised to will me her jewelry.

"And now what does she do? She finally attempts to go through with it and doesn't leave a single word about what's to be done with her jewelry. That's just like her!"

And off she went. Just another darling Broadway "pal." . . . .

RECENTLY, FOR the first time in his brief career, a young singer received a break in the business. The boy had worked hard to get somewhere. And finally, while playing a benefit one night, a noted producer saw him and offered him a job.

The boy grabbed it. He was slated for nothing more than a small bit in this production. Yet, in the strange manner in which those things happen, it just so occurred that he was given a chance to rehearse the leading role one evening.

He was satisfactory. At that time, at any rate. And when the show opened out of town, the boy was billed as the leading juvenile.

After the opening performance, however, the producer realized that he had made a mistake. The boy was a likable fellow, but he needed plenty of additional experience to play such a role capably.

Thus, the producer was in a quandary, which makes a delicious dish when served hot with Roquefort cheese dressing. Here he had engaged a boy who was not strong enough for one of his principal roles. The days were passing. It was no easy matter to find a capable substitute at short notice. Naturally, he was worried.

Some five days after the out-of-town opening, the producer summoned several of his advisers to discuss the matter. All of them agreed that the boy must go as soon as possible.

The conversation was interrupted by the arrival of a note addressed to the producer. He read it hurriedly and went into a grin from ear to ear. For the note was from the boy they had just been discussing.

"Dear Mr. S," it read. "I know you are extremely busy at this time, but I feel that you will understand how important it is that I receive an immediate response from you.

"Due to the great personal success I have scored in this production, I feel that—in justice to me—you should raise my pay at once." . . .

BILL BLAKE, a kindly and courteous gentleman, was driving his Hudson along a New Jersey road a short time ago when he noticed that his gas was low. He pulled into a gas station and ordered the attendant to fill his tank. The latter gentleman walked to the rear of the car, stood there for a moment and then came back.

"You've had a tough break," he announced. "You probably don't know it, but your gas tank cap is missing. It must have dropped off while you were driving."

Mr. Blake asked what could be done about it, even as you and I.

"Well," replied the attendant, "I have an Oakland cap that I think will fit your tank. If it does you can have it."

The cap did fit. Mr. Blake paid the gasoline bill and then slipped the attendant $2 for his trouble and courtesy. He felt that he was lucky, at that . . .

The day before yesterday, which would make it some five weeks later, Mr. Blake was driving along the same road. And it just so happened that he turned into the same station for gas. The same attendant walked to the rear of the car and, evidently not recognizing it, walked over to Mr. Blake.

"You've had a tough break," he said. "Your gas tank cap is missing. But I think I can fix you up. I've got an old Hudson cap here that I think will fit your tank. If it does, you can have it."

He filled the tank, went into his little shack—and returned with the original cap he said had been missing on the previous occasion! There's a racket in every game. . . .

George M. Cohan, who has been in Hollywood for several weeks, is down on the studio books to begin work July 5, but don't be surprised if he sneaks in a little labor one day earlier, because July Fourth is the day the whole country celebrates Mr. Cohan's birthday. His natal day, the anniversary, too, of our Independence document, is thought to have influenced Mr. Cohan, who once was the busiest flag-waver in the country. The coming Cohan picture will be titled "The Phantom President," and he will play two parts in it, one a millionaire and the other a vagabond. George walks to the studio, four miles distant from his hotel, every morning.

Dennis King, the Gaylord Ravenal in Ziegfeld's revival of "Show Boat," goes in for athletics, being a fencer, wrestler and horseman. Perhaps you recall his mastery of fencing as Mercutio in Jane Cowl's production of "Romeo and Juliet" and as D'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers." Now he is going to play tennis in the Long Island tournament that will begin next Monday.

Andy Devine, who, to our great surprise, burst upon us in "The Spirit of Notre Dame," has just lost to Jack Oakie in a competition for the role of the boob actor who becomes a great movie director in "Once in a Lifetime," soon to be filmed. Oakie's greater fame gave him the preference over Andy, who has been climbing rapidly toward stardom.

Chico Marx, having recovered from a knee injury, work has been resumed on the filming of the Marx Brothers comedy, "Horse Feathers" . . . "That's My Boy," football story by Francis Wallace, sports writer, will make its appearance both as a novel and film in the fall . . . The romantic angle of "Night After Night," in which Mae West will make her screen debut, will be upheld by Frances Dee and Gene Raymond . . . Leslie Howard, while in Hollywood, will do both "Smilin' Through," with Norma Shearer, and his new play, "The Animal Kingdom" . . . "Liberty Road," a chain-gang story of the South, will have Richard Dix in the leading role.

Protect Your Home From Fleas!

FLEAS of all kinds—human, dog, cat, chicken or rat (which carry the dread bubonic plague)—are extremely annoying, have a bad bite (no one being immune to their vicious appetite) and carry disease.

Serious outbreaks come usually from animal pets or from the great number of eggs deposited in various places by the fleas. These eggs may be scattered throughout the entire house and soon hatch into very small worms which are hardly visible.

Visible or invisible insects can't escape the deadly DETHOL mist. Clean-smelling and harmless to humans and pets but absolute death to all insects and their eggs.

Delegates Will Get Their Voting Orders

By MARK SHIELDS

CHICAGO, June 29.—This is the third day of the Democratic National Convention.

Mr. Shields

For this reporter, having covered the Republican convention, and remained in Chicago during the interim, it is enough.

Actually there was no interim, for the Democrats were in action before the Republicans were fairly—or unfairly—through.

But today, in the eyes of the unterrified hosts of Democracy, is not enough, and no one may say when enough will come, and the word-weary among both delegates and reporters can go back whence they came, and whence many of them never should have come.

A Democratic convention is more than a gathering of politically-minded and statesmanlike gentlemen settling the destinies of the nation. It is a three-ringed circus, a swirl of movement, of tripping tongues and flying fists.

The Democrats put a punch into their politics, and are equally adept with either hand. They can lead with the right and cross and double-cross with the left.

Yesterday they settled two fights over contesting delegates and a battle over who should be chairman. Today they will fight out the matter of their platform. Tomorrow they should get down to nominating. And some day they will nominate.

It could be done much more efficiently and with greater dispatch, at a saving to the pocketbooks of the delegates, and the expense accounts—hopefully collectable—of the newspaper men.

* * *

Voices Unbossed, But Votes Controlled

But it isn't, because these gentlemen are Democrats, and must have their swing. Perhaps, you will say, because this is an unbossed convention. That's what lots of the delegates have been saying, with all the assurance of a married man, who talks that way—away from home. I know.

Delegates mill around with uncontrolled voices and arms, but with perfectly controlled votes—and don't let any one tell you different.

This delegate tells another delegate that so-and-so can't get the votes, and the other delegate replies contradictorily, and neither knows anything about it—because he hasn't been told which way he stands. He'll find out.

This is an unbossed convention only because the bosses can't find out from day to day, or hour to hour, what orders they shall give. And if they do give them, they are quickly rescinded or revised, or thrown away, and new ones take the same course.

Perhaps you are getting the idea that this one of Mr. Hearst's employes is fed up with the convention. As such, he is. It is a great show, a colorful milling about of Texans, Rhode Islanders, Vermonters and Georgians.

But is that what a national convention should be?

Whether it is not, that is what this one is.

The delegates came here to write a platform and nominate a candidate for the presidency.

Sometime today, after two sessions of preliminaries, they will get down to the platform. It may take a night session to accomplish this world-shaking achievement. Tomorroow they will begin to nominate a candidate.

* * *

Delay In Balloting Until Friday Likely

There are many patriots willing to offer themselves in that capacity. Each is entitled to have his merits recited for 20 minutes, and then his seconds, unlimited, can take five minutes each to tell how far the country will sink into the depths if he is not nominated.

That means another night session, with the balloting probably delayed until Friday. We came here for ballots, not ballets, and there have been more of the latter.

The Republicans did things differently. They were bossed and admitted it. They rather glorified in their subservience, though there were times when the Philadelphia delegates didn't know whether they were subservient to Bill Vare, Ed Martin or Jimmy Burke.

They got through their task in three days, cumbersomely, so far as Pennsylvania is concerned, it is true. But they got through, and maybe now are all through. Certainly some of the would-be leaders are. But the Democrats are just getting into a good lather.

They don't even know there is a depression.

Boat Owner Held In Bather's Death

The first arrest of a motorboat operator in connection with the death of a person struck by his craft was recorded yesterday when George W. Shimpeno, of Harmarville, was arrested and questioned by the Coroner. He was held in connection with the death of James Murphy, 17, of 5216 Duncan street, a bather, who was fatally injured by the propeller of Shimpeno's boat in the Allegheny River, near Oakmont, on Monday.

Shimpeno posted $1,000 bond for his appearance at the Coroner's inquest.

Charleroi Theater Damaged by Blaze

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 29.—A lighted cigaret dropped by a patron is believed responsible for a blaze which damaged the Menlo Theater in Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, to the extent of $5,000 shortly before last midnight. SHOWGIRL DYES HAIR--TROUBLE

Bobbed-haired Patricia Claire, platinum blonde, is a brunet today—but it was a lot of trouble.

Patricia, show girl, who used to dance in the Enright Theater chorus, was hailed into North Side Police Court today because she dyed her hair from a platinum blonde to brunet.

Her landlady, Miss Mary Graham, complained to Magistrate Ray Schneider that Patricia had left dark stains all over the bathroom of the house at 1014 North Lincoln avenue, North Side.

Patricia insisted she was innocent, but she was discharged when she promised to remove the stains. She announced to the court her hair was originally red.

FOES OF DEVICE BIASED, SAYS ATTORNEY

Cites $115,000 Already Spent to Meet Demands; Suit on Bond Next Step

Because of recent publicity on the voting machines and the activity of the League of Women Voters, the Commercial Credit Company, of Baltimore, has terminated negotiations with Allegheny County. Unless some amicable settlement is reached by the county a suit on the surety bonds furnished the county may be the next step in the complicated transactions in the much-discussed voting machine question.

In a letter to Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank yesterday, Duane R. Dills, chief counsel for the Commercial Credit Company, stated that although his company had expended $115,000, and was willing to spend considerably more in making the machines conform to requirements of Allegheny County, not contained in their contract, no matter what is done to make the machines conform to the county requirements adversaries of the machines will never be satisfied.

DILL'S LETTER

Dill's letter states:

"The straw that broke the camel's back in our negotiations was the fact that a paper of the standing of the Post-Gazette would go so far as to get two of our trusted employes to make statements upon which representations were made which gave the public the impression that the voting machines did not function properly. I think any right minded business man would condemn such a practice.

Dills also takes the League of Women Voters to task, although mentioning no names, by saying:

"The ladies who have been so prominent in pursuing this matter (Mrs. J. O. Miller and her sister, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith), and now apparently the Post-Gazette, keep referring to the last examination by the Secretary of the Commondealth, notwithstanding the pronouncement by your court that that examination could have no effect or relation to the prior contract between Allegheny County and the Poole Engineering and Machine Company.

"I have recently made an examination of the taxpayers' bills in other sections of the state, and find such a resemblance between them and the bills in Allegheny County; and information has recently been dug up in another part of the state with respect to similar taxpayers' bills, that I cannot help but be suspicious that this agitation might be inspired.

"Have all the funds for this agitation been subscribed by local citizens, or has help come from sources which might have an ulterior motive? An honest answer to that question might put the controversy in its true light."

Man Hurt Trying To Board Freight

While attempting to board a box car at the Neville street end of the Baltimore and Ohio tunnel early this afternoon, Anthony Ifperato, 2015 Wayne street, Swissvale, lost his footing and fell under the car. He was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital where he was reported to have suffered a fractured skull.

Husband Naps in Cellar; Arrested as Burglar

Answering a hurry-up call to a residence at 250 Lombard street, police early today found Mrs. Louis Weinberg, occupant of the house, excited. She informed Patrolmen Thomas Martin and Ernest Coberly that a burglar had been tampering with a cellar window.

The officers investigated and found the window open. They descended into the cellar and there found a man asleep. They dragged him upstairs and were escorting him to the patrol wagon when Mrs. Weinberg gazed upon the intruder. She said:

"That's my husband and he's also the burglar."

Mrs. Weinberger declared her husband had returned home intoxicated and that she refused to admit him to the house. She said he had spent several hours trying to force an entrance.

When the officers were undecided as to what to do with the prisoner, Mrs. Weinberg settled the question. She said:

"Lock him up. He broke into the house."

CHILDREN BEGIN BONUS MARCH

A family of four and two men today were on a hike from Pittsburgh to Washington to join the war veterans seeking bonus payment.

They are a part of the group organized by Mrs. George Huey, who last Saturday flew to Washington with her son, George, Jr., to visit her husband at the bonus camp.

Of the 17 men, women and children who left Hazelwood avenue in two machines yesterday, the six were dropped off at West Elizabeth to begin their hike.

The group consists of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dodson, and their children, Mary Jane, 11, and William, 8, evicted from their Lincoln avenue home Monday; Vincent Gross, of Sunnyside street, and James J. McGrath, commander of the Strip veterans.

Treated handsomely in West Elizabeth, the group was driven as far as Uniontown early today by William T. Morris, Jr. Last night they were fed by the women of Elizabeth's American Legion Auxiliary and given beds in the home of Mrs. Sohpie Lasosky.

A larger contingent of women and children is being organized, Mrs. Huey asserted, and probably leave for Washington early next week.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CHICAGO, June 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

They were Democrats yesterday. They fought, they split, and adjourned in a dandy wave of dissension.

Will Rogers

That's the old Democratic spirit. A whole day wasted and nothing done. I tell you they are getting back to normal. A whole day fighting over what? A President? No. A platform? No. Well then, what did they take up eleven hundred delegates' and 12 thousand spectators' time for? To see whether Huey Long (the Louisiana porcupine), would sit on the floor, or in the gallery? The "Porcupine sticks right on the floor." And the other four hours was fighting over who would be chairman of a convention already a week old.

You can't beat the old Democrats for comedy. Yours,

QUESTION TWO IN DEATH PLOT

Additional Records Wanted On Highways and Supplies; Teacher Salary Cut Up

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 29.—(AP.)—Determined to legislate economy in government, the General Assembly today adopted a number of resolutions requesting additional fiscal information from state departments and adjourned for the week after a brief and perfunctory session.

As the Legislature convened today, with half of the members absent, a new program of unemployment relief has been proposed, based on a $27,000,000 slash in state expenditures and an anticipated receipt of $23,000,000 from the $300,000,000 Wagner federal relief measure.

Although this proposal is still in a somewhat nebulous state, approximately 50 bills covering the proposal are being prepared for introduction in the House when the Legislature reconvenes at 9 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) next Tuesday.

DEMAND MOTOR DATA

To further its aims of legislative economy the Legislature today adopted a number of resolutions which require state officials to furnish financial data on the government operating costs. The Senate adopted the Parkinson resolution to require information from the State Highway Department on the cost of road construction, number of miles of pavement constructed, road program for the year and the status of the motor license fund.

The House adopted four resolutions requiring financial information and other data from the Department of Property and Supplies, Highway Department, budget secretary and from the treasury on the status of the general fund.

REPORTS DUE TUESDAY

This information is required to be furnished to the Legislature when it reconvenes next week and will be used by the General Assembly in its consideration of economy legislation.

The Senate passed on second reading four measures in the administration-organization program providing for emergency loans by political subdivisions this year on delinquent taxes, permitting payment of water rents and local taxes in monthly installments and providing for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to Pennsylvania banks and building and loan associations. The House on second reading passed the Steedle bill appropriating $363,702 for the cost of the extra session.

These measures will be considered on final passage next Tuesday night. Furthering the economy program was a bill introduced in the Senate today by Senator Mansfield, Allegheny, providing for a reduction of 10 per cent until June 30, 1935, in the minimum salaries provided for school teachers, principals and superintendents in the public school code. Any saving in the state payments to local school districts from this measure would be transferred to the general fund for appropriation for relief purposes or government operating expenses.

Two bills introduced in the House would abate penalties on state and local taxes and authorize poor districts co-extensive with municipal sub-divisions to furnish labor for unemployment relief projects.

Not a Drunk From 'Point' Celebrates With Sweeney

It was always a tradition at the Point, where Magistrate J. J. Sweeney was born 71 years ago, to get hilariously drunk the day or night of June 28.

For the word was whispered around that the twenty-ninth was "Johnny's" birthday. And on that festal day "Tell it to Sweeney" would look over his glasses at the parade of those fallen from grace, grunt, and discharge them.

For 15 years, most of it at the Central Station, "Johnny" did that. But the Point not being what it used to be, and Sweeney, now presiding in the South Side Police Station this birthday morning came and with it no sign of a drunk.

Murmured the magistrate:

"Times are looking ominous. The country's in a dangerous condition. There's not a souse on the calendar."

The stowaway, Paul Kaiser, a German, was discovered yesterday morning when the boat landed after a 48-hour flight.

UTILITY PLANS ON RATE CUT KEPT SECRET

Information Up to P. S. C., Head of Duquesne Light Says; City to Get Data

President F. R. Phillips, of the Duquesne Light Company, today refused to say whether his company will offer a reduced schedule of rates to the Public Service Commission at the conference July 8, when the cost of current to householders will be discussed. In answer to questions he replied:

"Any information on the subject must come from the Public Service Commission."

Asked what headway is being made in City Council's effort to obtain a lower rate for electricity, he said:

"City Solicitor Waldschmidt has asked for further information, and we will supply him with this just as soon as we can."

At the conclusion of the recent conference, it was indicated utility concerns have been showing earnings of 8 to 10 per cent during the last few years.

INTEREST IN GARDENS GAIN HERE

Inquiries Already Approach Last Year's Total

Increased interest in gardening, farming and lawns this season is being evidenced at the Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association, Room 2, Court House, where Henry R. Eby, director, reports the total inquiries of last year have been nearly equalled today.

This increase particularly has been noted in the requests for tests of soil. A total of 310 such tests, a free service carried on by the county bureau, was made last year. Mr. Eby said that total had almost been reached this week.

He explained the increased activities were probably due to the back-to-farm movement which has stirred added interest in back yard gardening and better care of flower beds and lawns. While various soil conditions are responsible for failure of plants to grow, a deficiency in phosphorus is the chief fault found in this county, Eby explained.

GAS STATIONS OPPOSED ON BOULEVARD

Bellevue Residents Declare Against Commercialization Of Ohio River Highway

Fifty residents and property owners of Bellevue, voicing objection to the commercialization of the Ohio River boulevard, declared in a petition presented to their borough council last night that there was no need for a gasoline station along that thoroughfare.

Less than half an hour after the protest meeting had adjourned, two young women residents of the borough were found stranded within 100 yards of the spot where it is proposed to build one of the stations. They had to be towed more than a mile to a filling station.

TWO ARE STRANDED

Embarrassed by their predicament, they refsued to divulge their names, agreeing however to posing for a photograph in exchange for the tow.

More than 50 persons attended the protest meeting in Council chambers, and nearly half of those present spoke on behalf of their objections. Two applications are before Council for the erection of gasoline service stations. One is proposed by a member of Council, William B. Rodgers. The other applicant is G. L. King.

Rodgers' brother-in-law, J. H. Caughey, also a member of Council, is one of the chief objectors, being the owner of a property in the vicinity of the proposed station.

HELD NUISANCE

Among the objections voiced by property-owners were that a gas station along the scenic boulevard would be a nuisance, unsightly and a forerunner of peanut, hot-dog and ice cream stands, which would attract undesirable visitors "until all hours of the night and morning." Among the chief objectors to be heard was Fred W. Giflin, chairman of the borough zoning committee.

Borough Solicitor George E. Morcroft, conducted the protest hearing. The ordinance changing the zoning from a residential to a commercial district, comes up for third reading and final passage in Council next Tuesday night.

BRIDE SPURNS SUITOR AGAIN

City detectives today were called to witness what they reported was a dispute between a bridegroom and a disappointed suitor in the presence of the bride.

Mrs. Sylvester Kelly, of Stiger street, South Side, who was married May 9 in Wellsburg, W. Va., told Joseph Graner that she elected to remain Mrs. Kelly.

The Kellys were to have been remarried today in St. Casimar's Church, Twenty-second and Sarah streets, but owing to the sudden illness of the bride the ceremony will be postponed until a later date.

The detectives said they were called by Mrs. Mary Kelly, mother of Sylvester, who feared trouble from an unexpected meeting of her son and Graner. They were told that Graner, approaching Kelly as he waited for a street car, had insisted both confront the bride and have the benefit of her final choice.

Graner had been going with the girl for the past four years, detectives said. Kelly, they reported, met the girl last November and married her last month.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Those people who impose on you, year after year, wasting your time, energy and money, spoiling your plans, keeping you from doing worth-while things—

Why do you stand for them?

At once you give a score of reasons. They're your friends, you say, or they are old associates that you "can't hurt." Some of them are even members of your own family. It's your "duty" to stick by them. You "feel sorry" for them. You're sure they'd "go to pieces" without you.

Plenty of reasons for letting pesty people stick around, and all of them noble-sounding, but as a matter of fact most of them are untrue. You don't mean to lie. You believe that these are your real reasons. But you're kidding yourself. You're not letting these people waste your life because you're bound by duty or have a tender heart. You permit their abuse because

THEY HAVE BECOME A HABIT WITH YOU, AND YOU HAVEN'T ENOUGH GUMPTION TO BREAK THAT BAD HABIT.

People a habit? Perhaps you never thought of them in that way. But people can become an addiction, like any other cussed custom, and in exactly the same way.

How and why do we acquire other habits? BECAUSE THEY GRATIFY SOME WEAKNESS IN US.

There's drinking, for example. Why do people drink? Because drinking helps us escape from tiresome reality, nagging responsibility. Drinking comforts our cowardice, soothes our laziness.

Some people do the same thing for us. They may be, usually are, very inferior people, but they have a certain value to us. They help us escape reality. They flatter and amuse us. They make us forget that we are cowardly and lazy.

Others gratify our vanity. We tolerate fools, because they make us seem wise by contrast. We permit idlers and grafters because, by their very clinging, they make us seem stronger and more capable.

Why do some smart men marry nit-wit women? Why do some efficient, self-respecting women marry worthless men? There are a couple of reasons.

But how about the malicious people; how about the cruel, selfish, dishonest people who batten on finer lives? Surely they're not just "mad habits?"

But they are; and for an amazing reason.

Most of us have a silly, disgusting voice in which we like to indulge. WE LIKE TO BE SORRY FOR OURSELVES. Self-pity gives us an excuse for all our failures. It also gives us a satisfying amount of publicity.

If we can't grab the spotlight in any other way, we can always do it by posing as martyrs, and so we stand for people who actually abuse us BECAUSE THEY SERVE OUR HABIT OF SELF-PITY.

EVERY ONE OF YOUR BAD HABITS GRATIFIES SOME WEAKNESS IN YOU.

EVERY WORTHLESS PERSON WHOM YOU PERMIT TO LITTER UP YOUR LIFE ALSO GRATIFIES SOME WEAKNESS IN YOU.

EVERY WORTHLESS PERSON IS THE ANSWER TO YOUR OWN COWARDICE OR LAZINESS, SILLINESS, STUPIDITY, SENTIMENTALITY, VANITY OR SELF-PITY.

Pesty people are just animated bad habits. You can break a bad habit whenever you wish to break it, but it will always be hard. We like our bad habits. We lean on them. We miss them when they're gone. And so we let them stick around.

Why do we let people impose on us, waste our time, money and energy, even abuse us? That's why. Not because we are tenderhearted or duty-bound, BUT BECAUSE THEY ARE BAD HABITS AND WE HATE TO LET THEM GO.

THEATER HOST TO NEWSIES

Forty Sun-Telegraph home delivery carrier boys were guests at Loew's Penn Theater last night by courtesy of Manager Mike Cullen. They had been called into the Sun-Telegraph office by a "pep" meeting to further encourage the fine work they had been doing in the Sharpsburg and Beechview districts. They were personally greeted by Louis L. Kaufman, the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, who told them all about the methods of getting and selecting the news for the daily broadcasts. Then they trooped off to the Penn Theater where, incidentally, they got a bigger thrill out of the Schmeling-Sharkey fight pictures than they did out of the feature film.

This does not mean that they did not enjoy "New Morals for Old," but the championship fight, to the boys, was the outstanding event of the evening. The Laurel and Hardy comedy—"Any Old Port"—kept the youngsters in a gale of laughter.

TURN A TREAT INTO a Triumph

GLORIFY STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES WITH CALUMET'S DOUBLE-ACTION!

TO-DAY—make the world's best strawberry shortcakes! The real old-fashioned kind—but with a tenderness, a lightness you've never known before. Fluffy puffs of deliciousness, rich and flaky—spread with butter and topped with juicy red berries. A triumph, indeed, to set on your table.

You'll treasure this recipe, once you've tried it. But this is important—follow each step exactly—and use Calumet Baking Powder. For it's Calumet's Double-Action that makes these shortcakes so gloriously perfect!

Calumet, you see, acts twice instead of once. That works a magic transformation. In the mixing bowl, Calumet's first action begins. It gets the leavening started right. Then, in the oven, the second action starts. It carries on the leavening. Up! . . . up! . . . it keeps raising the dough—holding each biscuit high and light, till it's beautifully browned—baked to perfection! And that's what happens to every cake or quick bread when you use Calumet. Two actions get on the job and carry your baking right through to a super-delicate, delicious finish!

Extra thrifty, too!—The simple tested recipe given here is a Calumet recipe—specially designed for the Calumet proportion—only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour. A splendid economy for you—thanks to the perfect efficiency of Calumet's Double-Action.

Be bargain-wise—try Calumet! Remember, Calumet brings to your baking superlative success—complete satisfaction—every time. It prevents costly failures. Added to that, Calumet is reasonably priced. That's why, from every angle, Calumet is a real baking powder bargain. Calumet is a product of General Foods Corporation.

PIRATES SET FOR CARDS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Grace Still Errorless.
Thurston Aids Dodgers.
Gomez Reverses Theory.

L. WANER'S FAST RECOVERY AIDS BUCS

THERE'S A BIG break for the Pirates in the fact that Lloyd Waner's injured foot has responded to treatment so quickly that the little center-field star will be back at his post when league leaders grapple with the Cardinals at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon to open a long home stay. Any shift in a winning combination may sometimes slow up a successful drive, and in particular the Bucs could ill afford to lose part of the famous brother act that has been a tremendously important factor in the climb to first place.

Lloyd Waner

Another player who could not be replaced is Earl Grace. His fine catching has had much to do with the success of the club, and the future of the Gibsons depends largely on his escaping injury. Grace's backstopping has been one of the standouts of the major league season. In addition to handling the pitchers with rare judgment and skill, Earl has done a perfect job on the mechanical end of his work. Catching in 51 games, he has yet to make an error, accepting a total of 178 chances without a slip—152 putouts and 26 assists. He is charged with only one passed ball.

ONE THING THAT Connie Mack always refuses to do is to compare the pitching ability of his group of great southpaws—Rube Waddell, Eddie Plank, Herb Pennock and Bob Grove. But he indicates a leaning by admitting he likes the way Grove comes around and offers to pitch a game when it's not his turn for duty.

On account of that trait, Grove is permitted to pitch whenever he feels like doing so. When he tells Mack at any time that he is ready to enter the box, in he goes, no matter whose turn it happens to be. Connie knows he will be right. And Lefty doesn't pick his spots. They all look alike to him.

THE GIANT MANAGEMENT is hopeful that Len Koenecke, the $75,000 failure sent to Jersey City in exchange for Joe Moore, will find himself and return to the majors better equipped to make the grade. The New York club has had little luck with high-priced rookies. Jimmy O'Connell, $75,000; Jack Bentley, $65,500, and Wayland Dean, $50,000, all were disappointing.

One of Koenecke's mates in the Jersey City outfield is Clyde Barnhart, former Pirate. Pooch is playing good ball and is one of the most dangerous hitters in the International League. The entire regular Skeeter team is made up of former big leaguers. The third outfielder is Ike Boone and the infield is composed of Bud Clancy, Fresco Thompson, Bobby Reis and Jackie Warner.

TO THE YEAR'S list of pitching surprises must be added the name of Hollis Thurston. That 32-year-old chucker had not been counted on for much more than mopping-up duty, but since he was substituted for Ray Phelps in the group of starting flingers he has been the most dependable man on the Dodger slab staff. He started off by trimming the Giants, followed with victories over the Braves, Cubs and Reds, and then beat the Braves again for his fifth win in a row. In the five games he allowed only 14 runs, an average of less than three to a contest. Thurston isn't a power pitcher, and doesn't try for a lot of strikeouts. He employs an easy delivery and depends mainly on curves and on pitching to the weaknesses of the opposing hitters. Manager Carey considers him the smartest pitcher on the Dodger corps.

Vernon Gomez

SOUTHPAW PITCHERS ARE supposed to be at a disadvantage when facing right-hand hitters, and to have a soft spot when a left-hand swinger comes up, but Vernon Gomez, Yankee fork-hand star, has not found it that way in beating the A's five times this season.

Even though such great right-hand hitters as Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons were in the same lineup, Gomez did not find them as tough as a left-hand hitter, Mickey Cochrane. "Cochrane is the toughest man on that club for me to pitch to," Gomez said. "Simmons and Foxx? Sure, they're tough, too. They're all tough. But Cochrane gives me the most trouble."

THE RECENT SUCCESS of the Pirates in winning doubleheaders on two consecutive days has brought some queries as to how closely they approached the standing records in the big show for triumphs of that sort.

Gibson's speeders did not even threaten the major league mark, which has stood since 1906, when the New York Americans won five dual bills in a period of six days, one of the ten victories being a forfeited game.

IN THE NATIONAL League, the record for consecutive doubleheaders won is four, set by the Dodgers in 1924 and equaled by the Giants in 1928. The high mark in the majors for successive twin bills lost is five, set by the Boston Nationals in 1928. The Red Sox set the American League record at four straight lost in 1921. The Braves played the most doubleheaders in succession, nine, in 1928. Honors for winning two games in one day the most times during the season, not consecutive, are held by the A's, who did it 12 times during 1911.

THOUGH IN THE last 11 years, Pacific Coast athletes have won all but one of the annual track and field meets of the I. C. 4 A's, the experts out there are not optimistic as to the outcome of the 1932 renewal of the big event at Palo Alto Friday and Saturday. The records made by Eastern and mid-Western trackers this year lead the Coast people to fear that their representatives are in for a defeat.

In fact, they feel that they have only two men who can be depended on to win first places. They are Ben Eastman, runner, and Lee Barnes, pole vaulter. Four years ago, 22 Coast athletes made the American Olympic team. This year, in a total of 100, the far Westerners do not expect to place more than 12 to 15.

MARKING THE TWELFTH year of competition in the historic football series between Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech, Athletic Director Jess Harper and Graduate Manager Clarence Overend have just set the date for the 1934 battle. The Tartans have been assigned October 20 at South Bend on the 1934 schedule of the Irish.

Clarence Overend

The old foes will round out a decade of gridiron tussles next fall at South Bend, and in 1933 Notre Dame will come to Pittsburgh for the annual tilt with the Plaid. The series started back in 1922, when the Irish were just coming into their own as the greatest drawing cards in college football.

THE COMPETITION RAN for five years without a break, the last game in the first cycle being the occasion of Carnegie's great 19-to-0 setback of an otherwise unbeaten team. There was no game in 1927, relations being resumed in 1928, when the Skibos made it two in a row by their 27-to-7 triumph at old Cartier Field in South Bend. It was in the opening game of the series in 1922 that Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher, Jimmy Crowley and Don Miller, then playing their initial varsity campaign were first used together as a definite combination. Pittsburgh really ranking as the birthplace of the marvelous backfield that became known as the Four Horsemen in 1924. It was in the 1926 battle that Howard Harpster made his first real bid for national gridiron fame. The series has been dotted with thrills, and it will be welcome news to the supporters of both schools that dates have been arranged so far in the future.

FRENCH TENNIS STAR BOWS TO CALIFORNIAN

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—(AP.)—Helen Jacobs, powerful California girl, swept over Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 7-5, 6-1, today to win her semi-final match in the women's tennis singles and all but guaranteed an all-American finals.

The Berkeley girl was the first to reach the final round, but tomorrow Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, seeking to regain the championship she did not defend last year and an overwhelming favorite, will meet Mary Heeley, British junior titleholder in 1928, in the second semi-final.

DUPLICATE FINAL

Victory for Mrs. Moody tomorrow will duplicate the final round of 1929 when the four-time Wimbledon singles champion conquered Miss Jacobs in straight sets. The women's singles final will be played Friday.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian now living in London, and Enrique Maier, Spanish champion, advanced in the mixed doubles by defeating Mrs. B. C. Covell, of England, and Jack Clemenger, of Australia, 5-7, 6-2, 6-0. No other Americans played mixed doubles today.

ALLISON-VAN RYN WIN

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, American Davis Cup doubles team, defeated Roderich Menzel, of Czechoslovakia, and J. S. Olliff, of England, in four sets, 6-4, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Victory for the American pair carried them into the semi-finals with little trouble.

The hard-hitting Anglo-Czech pair developed too many flaws in their defensive game to give them any real chance against the experienced Americans.

The French team of Pierre Merlin and Christian Boussus defeated R. Miki and Jiro Satch, of Japan, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, in the quarter-finals of men's doubles.

As a result of Bunny Austin's victory over Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Frank Shields' defeat by Jack Crawford yesterday, Ellsworth Vines, American champion, is the United States' lone remaining representative in the men's singles.

GLOVE TOURNEY EXTENDED

Amateur boxers of the district will continue to fling leather tonight in the Golden Gloves tournament under the auspices of the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club at the club's arena on the North Side. The tourney originally was slated to be completed tonight, but the heavy entry list has forced officials to schedule the finals for Friday evening.

Seventeen bouts were run off last night, spirited and thrilling action marking the fisticuffing. In the 112-pound class, Matt Oznak, of the Emerald Club; Johnny Burke, Linwood Club, and Frank Wingo, Willow Club, were returned victors, Wingo by a technical knockout.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: A WONDER OF PROLIFICITY—Lope de Vega (1562-1635), famous Spanish playwright, soldier, sailor and poet, wrote his first play in four acts at the age of 11. Thereafter, for 60 years, crowded with every imaginable adventure and activity, he wrote books and plays in astonishing profusion. The number of books written by him is so enormous that the feat of transcribing them is incredible in itself. Some of his four-act plays were composed, written and produced within 24 hours. In addition to 1,800 plays, he wrote 400 "autos" and 1,900 other books. Some of these books were exceedingly voluminous, among them the poem "Jerusalem Conquered," of 22,000 verses.

CLEVELAND, June 29.—Billy O'Loughlin, Pitt and P. A. A. ace, faces Bill Becker, West Side Public Parks star, in third-round play of the Ohio State singles tourney at the Cleveland Tennis and Racquet Club here this afternoon. O'Loughlin, seeded number three through a last minute switch in the draw, advanced through two brackets yesterday at respective expenses of Andy Meldrum, University School ace and local junior champion, and Henry Wick, III., home driver from Yale.

Meldrum offered the hard-hitting Pittsburgher opposition aplenty and succumbed only after a free-walloping extra-set tussle, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Wick, in the second tussle, went under at 6-4, 6-3.

Other Steel City singles entrants fared poorly. Sam Keller, former Duquesne University leader, lost to Pace, of Akron, 6-4, 6-2. Sullivan, Winged Head teammate of O'Loughlin, was beaten by Tom Hearley, of Case, 6-2, 6-1.

Seeded favorites battled through without exception. Frankie Parker, Detroit's 16-year-old phenom, who several days ago trimmed George Lott, breezed through three opponents. Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles giant, entered frame three by downing George Hoyt, Pacific Northwest luminary, 6-2, 6-1.

O'Loughlin and Sullivan meet the Cleveland outfit of Carr and Ranney in the Ohio men's doubles opener today and will get into action for Pittsburgh in the United States inter-city doubles event tomorrow.

How I Won Heavyweight Title From Schmeling

A NEW CHAMPION IS CROWNED . . END OF SCHMELING BOUT

Jack Reveals Strategy of Battle—Closed Eye Caused Him to Change Plans Toward Finish—Confident He Won And Will Give Loser Return Bout.

(Note—This is the last of two articles by the new heavyweight champion of the world dealing with his bout with Max Schmeling in which he won the title and which has resulted in so much heated controversy. In yesterday's installment, Sharkey stressed how his stiff left jabs kept Schmeling at bay and how the hardest blows Max scored were three "sneak punches" delivered "when breaking out of a clinch" or "after I had pushed him back on the breakaway.")

It was a sneak right-hand punch that damaged my left eye in the seventh round. I notice that some of the ringside observers say my eye was hurt in the tenth or eleventh round.

HAFEY'S DEATH IS DENIED

CINCINNATI, June 29.—(INS.)—Chick Hafey, ace batsman of the Cincinnati Reds, is plenty alive— so live, in fact, that he may get out in uniform today or tomorrow, according to Sidney Weil, president of the Reds.

It had been rumored that Hafey, who has been suffering a severe attack of influenza, was dead.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

NEW YORK, June 29.—Well, folks, as the Democratic Nationals come to bat, it's the first half of the ninth and Frankie Roosevelt has got the game pretty well sewed up, with only a few opposing delegates to face him. Al Smith is in the first base coaching box trying to rattle Frankie into a wild pitch, and Jack Raskob is wigwagging from the bench for a double steal.

BUCS TO OFFER LADIES' DAY TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Although July and the firecrackers are just around the corner, you would not be far off the track were you to broadcast that the baseball season will open in Pittsburgh tomorrow. Certainly there is more enthusiasm over the Buccos at this writing than there was when they came back from California to open the campaign in an official way.

Several unusual happenings are carded for the Oakland Orchard on the morrow. In the first place, George Gibson will lead a first-place ball team on the field—and that's something! In the second place, the occasion will mark the first Ladies' Day in the history of Forbes Field, and in the third place the date commemorates the twenty-third anniversary of the opening of the home of the Pirates. Add to these inducements the fact that the Oaklanders will tangle with the World Champion Cardinals and you have an attractive feast for those fortunate people able to take in the game.

WIN EXHIBITION

Gibby and his National League pacesetters reached the home port late last night after a ride from Marion, O., where yesterday they joshed the Marion ball-gamers as the big leaguers won by the lop-sided score of 24 to 2. Most of the second-string Buccaneers were in action during the frolic.

Boss Gibson was anxious to get information on the condition of Lloyd Waner as soon as he landed. When the skipper learned that Lloyd would be able to take his place in the first battle with the Cardinals he was relieved perceptibly. The Redbirds will be here for three scraps on successive afternoons.

Brother Lloyd has been taking special treatment since he returned to Pittsburgh. He was hurt in the ninth inning of the first game of the Pirate-Red doubleheader in Cincinnati Sunday. It was feared that he might have to ride the bench for a spell, but apparently he is O. K. for duty again. In the event that his wound keeps him out of action, Adam Comorosky will go to the centerfield post.

CARDS SHOW CLASS

Gibson, naturally, wishes to have his strongest lineup in action when the Pirates mix with the Cardinals. The St. Louis club recently has showed signs of finding itself, and if it does it will be a tough combination for the other flag contenders.

Most of the Buccos will cut up some sort of didoes at Forbes Field today. The regular pitchers, and Catchers Earl Grace and Tommy Padden, have been on the job since Monday.

The fact that Monday is a holiday will not deprive the members of the Pirates' Knothole Club from enjoying their usual two days as guests of the management next week. President William E. Benswanger today announced that Tuesday has been set aside for the youngsters and they will be admitted without charge on this day. Friday as usual will find the boys guests of the management.

At Marion yesterday, the Pirates accounted for 27 safe hits, Thevenow, Brame, Dugas, Comorosky and Vaughan getting three each. The 10-run attack in the first inning was too much for the home towners. The box score:

Meyers Bowl Pays Up, Saves License

The Meyers Bowl today settled its obligations on its recent Kid Chocolate-Johnny Farr show, in keeping with an order from the boxing commission that it pay up by today or forfeit its bond and license at a meeting of the commission in Philadelphia this afternoon.

Payment was made for the services of Kid Chocolate as per his contract, and for Jimmy Belmont. All other indebtedness had been paid previously. The Bowl management is reorganizing, and plans to resume the staging of shows within a week or two.

SARAZEN WITHDRAWS FROM WESTERN OPEN

LINKS STARS TUNE UP FOR BIG TEST

CLEVELAND, June 29.—(AP.)—Over Canterbury's 18 narrow fairways and tricky greens, usually beset by winds of gale-like proportions, the vanguard of aspirants for the Western Golf Association championship warmed up today for the tournament that starts tomorrow morning.

Practically all of America's golfing clan had gathered for the event which will renew the struggle for supremacy of the links which went into a temporary lull last week when Gene Sarazen outstroked the field in the National Open.

But the field will start without the holder of the world's two most coveted golfing prizes. Sarazen, late last night, informed officials of the tournament that he would not compete.

WALKER CUP TEAM NAMED

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—Capt. Francis Ouimet, national amateur golf champion, will have a combination of youth and experience from which to select his team for the defense of the Walker Cup against the British challengers, September 1 and 2, at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass.

Ouimet will captain his first Walker team over the course where he first sprang to fame by beating Vardon and Ray for the American Open championship in 1913.

His squad, announced by H. H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf Association, consists of the following players:

George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York and Princeton; Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va.; Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of St. Paul; Donald K. Moe, of Portland, Ore.; Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of New York; Charles Seaver, of Los Angeles and Stanford; Jess W. Sweetser, of New York; George J. Voigt, of New York, and Jack Westland, of Chicago.

NEW STAR SELECTED

The selections show the biggest percentage of new blood yet called to the colors for this international competition. Five have never played in Walker Cup matches. McCarthy was an alternate for the 1930 series, Howell and Seaver have sprung rapidly to prominence in national tournaments, Dunlap has won a number of major events and Westland went to the finals against Ouimet in the National Amateur last year.

What about the National Open golf tournament?

How about Gene Sarazen's victory?

How did the local representatives fare?

Vincent Eldred, professional at the Highland Country Club, who led the Pittsburgh delegation, finishing in a tie for eleventh place at Flushing, L. I., in the three days' play ending last Saturday, will answer these and related queries in an interview with Tom Birks, golf editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph this evening, beginning at 6:55 o'clock.

On the same program, Herbert M. (Hub) Rinehart, local tennis player, sings "Without a Song" and "Home on the Range," with Miss Marian Salmon at the piano. Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies, and Julius Levin also will participate in the program.

FABLE: Once upon a time Bushy Graham, Utica featherweight, was matched for a bout and showed up and went through with it.

But not in Pittsburgh.

The greatest disappointer in recent ring times, Graham has pulled another runout on a local promoter, and will not appear against Johnny Willis, of Philadelphia, in one of the two 10-round bouts at Greenlee Field tonight. His manager, Joe Netro, last night sent a telegram to Jules Beck, matchmaker of the Hill District club, notifying him that Bushy hurt an ankle doing roadwork and would not be able to box.

MASSEY MEETS MILLER

As a result, Beck has rearranged his card, moving up Charley Baxter from an eight-round battle with Don McLeod, of Detroit, to meet Willis in a 10-round companion piece to the main event, between Ray Miller, of Detroit, and Lew Massey, of Philadelphia. Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, will take Baxter's place against McLeod, and this bout has been shortened to six rounds. Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, and Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, will box the opener.

FREQUENT RUNOUT

A few seasons ago, Graham ran out at the eleventh hour against Jackie Rodgers at the Meyers Bowl and Johnny McCoy had to be substituted. A few other times the local promoters had him booked, only to be left holding the bag when he pulled out. He can come up with more illnesses and injuries, real or imagined, on short notice than any man with whom they have had to deal. Perhaps one of these days they will take a tumble to themselves and quit humoring his whims. He's dynamite and nothing else.

MILLVALE CARD COMPLETE

Matchmaker Bus Vogel, of Hickey Park, in Millvale, has completed his card for tomorrow night. He has Ted Yarosz, undefeated welterweight, of Monaca, boxing Johnny Hayes, a rugged, seasoned Italian, of Philadelphia, in the main bout of 10 rounds. Freddie Edwards and Cowboy DeLuca in the semi-final. Johnny Durso and Jerry Clements in the second bout and General Burrows and Jack Rinda in the opener. Durso, Burrows and Rinda all will be making their bows as professionals, while DeLuca is doing a comeback after a long spell on the sidelines.

Meet Tonight

Lew Massey

Ray Miller

JENDRASIAK BACK

Leon Jendrasiak, southpaw featherweight, of Grand Rapids, is back in town with his manager, Jim O'Grady, following a visit back home during which he underwent an operation on his nose. He is ready to box now. With him is Johnny Allen, Grand Rapids lightweight. They are working out daily at the Pittsburgh Lyceum.

MONTOUR GIRL CRACKS RECORD AT SHANNOPIN

By TOM BIRKS

Breaking the course record for women, Miss Lindsay Boyd, a protege of Tom Manley at Montour Heights, shot a fine 83 to lead home a field of 200 in the women's one-day tourney at Shannopin yesterday.

Miss Boyd, who is only 16 years old, flashed some real golf on the last nine after taking a 45 going out. Four 3s, one 4 and a birdie on the par 4 eighteenth gave her a 38, real golf on the long Ben Avon Heights layout. She had a 16 handicap, but as only one prize could be won by a single player, Miss Ruth Weller of Highland, won the low net with a 76.

Practically the entire field had left, including Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, who had shot 89, when the young Montour star planted her long second shot dead to the pin on the home hole and sunk the putt for a birdie. Miss Boyd's card:

Out ..... 5 4 7 4 5 5 5 5—45
In ..... 5 3 5 4 3 6 6 3 3—38—83

Today, at Oakmont, Edgewood, last place team in Section I, and Westmoreland, winner in Section II, will fight it out for the seventh berth in Section I in the women's golf league.

At Edgewood, the Duquesne University Alumni Association will hold its first tourney of the season. Leonard P. Kane, chairman of the committee, announces that three tourneys will be held this season. The next will be at the Field Club early next month, and the third at Highland in August.

Ted Luther, professional at Valley Heights and former West Penn Open champion, will give an exhibition of driving and iron shots at the Bob-O-Link course at Aspinwall next Tuesday at 9:15 p. m.

Dr. L. C. Brandom defeated Dick Wessell, 71 to 75 in the playoff match at Schenley yesterday for the fourth place on the local public links team which will compete in the national tourney in Louisville next month. The pair tied for the position in the recent qualifying test. The city is entitled to six men, but as there are funds available at present for only four men, the playoff was necessary. It is possible, however, with Wassell and Marty Boschert, the sixth man to qualify, may make the trip, provided additional funds can be raised.

Tomorrow, the annual all-star match will be played, with a team of 20 private club stars will meet a team of Schenley players, the proceeds of the match to be devoted to defraying the expenses of the public links team to Louisville.

ACES MAY WIN FIRST HALF FLAG TODAY

FERTIG'S NINE FACES TEST IN DUQUESNE

The Homestead Aces can sew up the first-half pennant in the West Penn League this evening when the Duquesne Republicans are met at West Field, Homestead.

Jack Fertig and his crack outfit need but one victory to clinch the title. The Carrick Eagles are hot on their trail, but a win over the Steel Workers this evening will put the championship in the bag.

It is likely that Fertig will pitch Asamonga in this important game. Duquesne fans are confident the Republicans can turn the trick of beating the Aces for the second time this season.

Dormont will meet the Ferris club in the final game of the first half in the City League. Scott Morgans can help their chances in the County League by beating Frick Park. The Morgans, Carnegie and Millikens are tied for the league lead.

Dormont and the J. L. Thomas nines scored triumphs in the City League last evening, the champions downing Homewood, 11 to 4, and Thomas taking Reliance Life, 8 to 5.

The Homestead Grays hit at timely moments behind steady hurling by Hubler to defeat the Crawfords, 4 to 1, at Greenlee Field last evening, although limited to five safe blows themselves. Three runs in the third inning put the game in the bag for the Grays.

In the West Penn League, the Aces set themselves for this evening's battle with Duquesne by defeating Turtle Creek, 7 to 4, while the Carrick Eagles bumped off the St. Clair Frogs, 2 to 0.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, suburban section, Edgewood tripped the Wilkinsburg Murs, 4 to 3, and in the city section the Jena club downed Fineview, 9 to 3.

SISLER RESIGNS

TYLER, Tex., June 29.—(AP.)—George Sisler resigned as player-manager of the Tyler Sports of the Texas League after he was asked to take a reduction in salary. Sisler will return to St. Louis, where he has an interest in a printing business.

Millvale Arena Cuts Prices For Fights

The Hickey Park Boxing Club, in Millvale, is going to cut its prices in keeping with the times, beginning with its show next week, Promoter John L. Hernon announced today.

Instead of charging $1 and $2, plus the federal tax of 10 per cent, Hernon has arranged to scale his prices in such a way that the fans all along the line will be paying less than formerly.

Twenty-two hundred bleacher seats will be available at 75 cents, or 65 cents plus the state and federal taxes.

All of the other seats, with the exception of the first five rows at the ringside, will sell at $1, or 86 cents, plus the state and federal taxes.

The five ringside rows will sell at $2, or $1.74, plus the taxes.

Hernon said he would make the change for this week's show, tomorrow night, featuring Ted Yarosz and Johnny Hayes, but for the fact that the tickets have been printed and many sold, and it would be an impracticable rearrangement.

Two 10-round heavyweight bouts will top next week's Hickey Park card. George Panka, of Homestead, will meet Pietro Corri, of New York, and Frank Novak, of the North Side, will take on Tiny Powell, of West Virginia. If Panka and Novak win, they will be paired for a sort of "natural" local elimination at an early date.

UPSET MARKS COLLEGE GOLF

CASCADES CLUB, HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 29.—(INS.)—Robert Moffett, of Princeton, scored an upset today when he defeated Hank Kowal, of Colgate, 4 and 2, in today's match play of the national intercollegiate golf tourney.

Kowal, who yesterday won the qualifying medal, was a heavy favorite to defeat the Princetonian.

Billy Howell, of Washington and Lee, beat Fred Damaske, of Northwestern, 7 and 5.

John E. Parker, captain next year of the Yale golf team, today was elected president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association of America. Parker's home is in Orange, N. J. Harry Lawson, of Southern California, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Brown Gets Win Over Arizmendi

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—Newsboy Brown, held to a draw here two weeks ago by Baby Arizmendi, sensational Mexican boxer, won the decision in 10 rounds over Arizmendi here last night.

In the semi-final, scheduled for eight rounds, Wesley Ketchell, of Portland, Ore., won by a technical knockout over Wilse Yarbo, of Cleveland, in the first round.

Frankie Petrolle Whips Battalino

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—The Petrolle family undoubtedly is a jinx on Christopher (Bat) Battalino.

The former world featherweight champion absorbed two terrific beatings from Billy Petrolle during the winter season and then decided he'd try his hand against Billy's less-famous brother, Frankie, who lives in Schenectady, N. Y.

They clashed over the 10-round route in the Queensboro Stadium last night, and Frankie gave Battalino a trouncing all the way to win the decision without trouble.

How I Won Heavyweight Title From Schmeling

By JACK SHARKEY

The condition of the eye, however, became worse as the bout progressed. I was squinting through a narrow slit in the fifteenth round.

As it was my left eye that was damaged, it was necessary for me to change my position slightly so that I could get a full view of Schmeling.

When my eye started to close in the eleventh, I was a bit alarmed. It isn't any cinch battling with the vision of only one eye. Fate, however, gave me a break, and the eye never entirely closed.

I also think the fact I was fighting under this handicap caused me to open up in the later rounds. This was especially true in the thirteenth. Schmeling, I felt, won the twelfth round. I didn't want to let him continue his rally, and so opened up with a wild attack in the thirteenth.

As Schmeling plunged forward, he was the usual easy target for my left hand. Persons who have seen the moving pictures of the bout tell me I hit Schmeling with 53 lefts without a return in the thirteenth round. I think that stiff stabbing took much out of Schmeling. He knew better than anybody else then that he had given his best and that I had licked him.

Schmeling would stumble after I would nail him with lefts. He would then throw his right. I would pull away and counter with my right. This must have been very discouraging to the young German.

In the fourteenth and fifteenth rounds, Schmeling tried to make a rushing fight of it. He concluded he couldn't outbox me, and tried desperately for a knockout.

There was plenty of power behind Schmeling's punches, but most of them didn't land. Max was quite wild. Those straight left jabs and right crosses had him upset.

Teuton's Final Rush

In the first part of the fifteenth round, Schmeling made a final rush. I again took the fire out of his attack with straight lefts to the face. In the latter part of the round, I had Max backing away and hit him repeatedly with left and right hand wallops.

At no time during the bout did I feel I was not master of the situation. It was a case where my superior ability as a boxer made me feel sure of beating the strong young German.

When the final gong sounded, I walked to Schmeling's corner with him. I chatted with Max about the battle and then went to my own corner to wait for the decision.

I kept my eyes glued on Joe Humphries. After he got the slip of Judge Charles Mathison, he picked up the slip of Referee Gunboat Smith. Then he took the slip of Judge George Kelley.

After Humphries looked at Kelley's slip, he took a step in the direction of my corner. I knew then the official decision was mine, and heard the announcement a few seconds later.

Will Give Max Return Bout

I was tickled at being proclaimed heavyweight champion. My joy was due chiefly to the fact that I had proved I could accomplish a feat I had always claimed I would do some day. I have had so many ups and downs it was a real satisfaction to finally get to the head of my boxing division.

And now I am "unwinding," and have been "unwinding" my tightened nerves ever since Humphries raised my right duke and proclaimed me "the winner and new champion."

I know many dispute the decision, and the hue and cry over it has become as hysterical as I have been at times. But inside those ropes I know I outpointed Schmeling clearly. I think that down in his heart he knows so himself, and that time will show the justice of that decision.

At any event, the game young German—he is a real first-class fighter—will be given another chance at the title, and I will not delay him as long as his manager delayed me.

The End.

NO "LIGHT ENDS"
"Light ends" evaporate. • Cause excessive oil consumption. • Have low viscosity. • Have low lubricating value under heat.

NO "HEAVY ENDS"
"Heavy ends" contain residual impurities. • Form tar-like deposit on exhaust valve stem. • Form carbon deposit in combustion chamber, on underside of piston head and behind the piston rings. • Cause formation of crankcase sludge.

MOTOR OIL
The Heart of the Crude

In distilling crude oil, ATLANTIC rejects the "light ends" and "heavy ends" with their injurious elements. The new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL is the heart of the crude. That's why it easily withstands temperatures two or three times higher than the lubricated parts of your engine will ever develop. Has no tendency to "crack." No evaporation loss.

MOTORISTS with new cars who want to keep them new. Motorists with older cars to keep in tip-top shape. Motorists who want greater power and all-around performance. Motorists who don't want extravagant maintenance bills.

They are turning by the thousands to the new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL—the heart of the crude! For they have found that here is the richest, choicest, paraffine-base motor oil ever produced commercially. An oil that means smoother driving. Lower up-keep costs. Fewer repair bills.

This great new oil has a higher viscosity than usual, for better engine protection in summer. Ideal for engines of high compression, and for high-speed driving. Carbon-forming characteristics are so low that the combustion chamber of the motor remains clean after hundreds of miles of operation. Inherent sludging characteristics are negligible.

The new ATLANTIC MOTOR OIL sells at no extra cost. It is a fitting companion to ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH, the great super-fuel. Fill your crankcase with the heart of the crude—for hundreds of miles of smooth driving.

STOCKS WORK UP IN DULL TRADING

Short Covering Imparts Higher Tendency to List; Electric Hits New Low

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—The stock market remained a rather spineless affair today, but with prices bumping along the old lows, shorts were cautious and did enough covering to give the list an irregularly higher tendency.

Prices held in an extremely narrow trading area for the most part, and had a momentary setback coincident with Westinghouse's dividend omission. Nevertheless, traders felt that with the market so dull, and the possibility of developments in Washington, Chicago or Lausanne susceptible of bullish interpretation, the short side was rather dangerous.

The list firmed in the first hour, and after a temporary sag, stiffened again after midday. Gains of a point or more appeared in American Can, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Case, Air Reduction, Coca Cola, American Tobacco "B" and Allied Chemical, while United States Steel, American Telephone, Standard of N. J. and McIntyre Porcupine were up fractionally. Westinghouse sagged more than a point to a new low. Wrigley, National Biscuit, Central Aguirre, South Porto Rico Sugar and Hershey lost as much, while Proctor and Gamble declined 2. Some of the preferreds were weak. Johns Manville and American Radiator breaking 5 in a thin market.

Dividend news was again an important factor. Westinghouse's omission of the 25-cent quarterly had been foreshadowed in the sharp break earlier in the week. Wrigley ordered four consecutive 25-cent monthly dividends. Previously, it had been paying 50 cents in certain months, bringing the annual payment up to $4. McIntyre Porcupine provided further evidence of the tendency of gold mining to thrive in hard times, by increasing its annual rate to $1.50 from $1. Sugar stocks backed up in sympathy with the recent reaction in the raw sugar market.

The weekly electric power production figures were somewhat disappointing, since they tended to bear out the theory that the improvement of the preceding fortnight had been at least partly due to a pickup in manufacturing in anticipation of the excise taxes which took effect June 21. Power production for the week ended June 25 showed a slight decline from the previous week, although that week was a period of gains in the preceding three years. In contrast to last year, the week was off 11.9 per cent, against 10.5 per cent the week before. The weekly petroleum figures, however, were definitely favorable, showing a reduction in gasoline stocks of 2,349,000 barrels, and average daily crude production of 41,450 barrels.

WESTINGHOUSE DIVIDEND OFF

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—Directors of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company today omitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, but declared the regular disbursement of 87½ cents a share on the preferred. The statement said:

"In view of the earnings situation of the company for some little time, it was the opinion of the directors that the company should conserve its cash resources and not further reduce the surplus by payment of any dividend on the common stock."

"The company has no outstanding bonds or bank loan, and is in very sound financial condition as to cash and net quick assets."

Three months ago the common dividend was reduced to 25 cents from 62½ cents, which had been paid for two quarters. Prior to that the rate had been $1 quarterly for two periods, compared with the $5 annual rate of 1920.

'Tis to Laugh! An Objector to High Pay.

—By B. C. FORBES—

A SENATOR objects to railway presidents being paid $50,000 to $100,000 or more a year. He says that fully $100,000 is paid President Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania; President Willard, of the B. & O.; Chairman DeForest, of the Southern Pacific.

ONCE THERE was a lucky clerk who invested $2,500 in a company organized by a mechanical genius, worked for him 12 years, then sold out for $30,000,000 — and later, as Will Rogers put it, "sued for an accounting." That meant an average income of $2,500,000 a year, in addition to a fat salary. Contrasted with this man's record, railway presidents are income pikers.

B. C. Forbes

Yet—laugh if you want to—the Senator who objects to the salaries paid the men who are responsible for running the largest railway systems in the world is the self-same ex-clerk who pocketed an average of $2,500,000 a year, plus his fat salary!

THAT IS NOT a fairy tale. Believe it or not, it is an actual happening. The Senator is James Couzens, Detroit, whom Henry Ford made rich rapidly.

Senator Couzens is the gentleman who screeched for the imposition of war-high income super taxes on large incomes to soak the rich. That sounded nobly unselfish and patriotic—until reports here published that Senator Couzens evades taxes on his $30,000,000 by investing in tax-free bonds.

SOME OF THE world's richest men have paid notoriously poor salaries. John D. Rockefeller paid no fancy salaries; Standard Oil men, if they wanted to get rich, had to buy Standard Oil shares. Even today Standard Oil salaries for higher-ups are much below those objected to by Senator Couzens. Nor do doctors, scientists and other brilliant men connected with various Rockefeller philanthropic organizations become rich through the salaries paid them.

Senator Couzens, having got his in a hurry and in multiple millions, presumably feels that he rendered to the country services far transcending in importance those rendered by even the ablest of railway chief executives. You are entitled to your own view.

A FAVORITE saying in business is that the value of the services rendered by a man or by an organization can be fairly measured by the monetary rewards reaped.

That is the sheerest bunk.

Would even Senator Couzens himself dare claim that his services to America were far greater than Edison's? Couzens waxed several times as rich as Edison.

Andrew W. Mellon rendered his greatest service to America after he entered public life, as Secretary of the Treasury, in 1921. Whereas he had rolled up one of the largest fortunes in America before then, his pay for his government service was $15,000 a year.

THE NOTION that money is the correct yardstick for measuring the worth of service rendered by an individual or a corporation is strictly an American notion. It prevails in no other civilized land.

You will grasp how ridiculous it is if you merely ask:

"Did the amount an individual or a corporation was earning and was worth three years ago accurately represent the value of his or its services; or, do today's earnings and worth represent the accurate value?"

Manifestly, one or the other cannot be correct—especially since most individuals and corporations are working and struggling much harder now than three years ago.

SO, JUST BECAUSE your earning power or your bank account has suffered severe contraction, don't conclude that you have made a failure of your life. Genuine merit isn't necessarily measured by money.

Receivers Named For Chicago R. T.

CHICAGO, June 29.—On petition of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, United States District Court Judge Wilkerson has appointed Britton I. Budd and Albert A. Sprague receivers for the Chicago Rapid Transit Company. The company admitted allegations in the petition and did not oppose the request for appointment of receivers. Mr. Budd is president of the Rapid Transit lines, which operate the elevated system in Chicago and suburbs.

St. Paul to Get Loan of $8,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(INS.)—The Interstate Commerce Comission has approved the application of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad for a three-year loan of $8,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The loan is to be used in paying equipment trust certificates, interest on bonds and for other purposes. The road had applied for a loan of $10,996,331.

U. S. INDUSTRY TURNED TO LOW DEMAND

Reserve Expansion Policy Now Operating to Turn Business Trend Upward

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The technique of conversion of the American business executive from the prevailing counsel of despair will entail appreciation of the fact that productive industry has been gradually attuned to current acutely subnormal demand.

In the lead industry, for example, where buying proceeds at an extremely low level, production has been reduced to equal current takings. In other words, the industry is thoroughly adjusted to anything which might reasonably occur except a pick-up in demand. Stocks on hand would probably last less than three months, and it would take a quarter of a year to get production fully under way again.

Mr. Rukeyser

Likewise, in the petroleum industry, the current tendency is to keep production down to a level which necessitates dipping into accumulated stocks.

STAND HAZARDOUS

Recovery will be facilitated to the extent that increasing numbers of executives are converted to the view that, considering statistics of production and consumption and prevailing low commodity prices, there may be more risk in hand to mouth buying, than in augmenting inventories. Usually, a business viewpoint changes slowly and imperceptibly. Only the keenest and most sensitive minds are capable of going against the trend. After they start a new trend, more shortsighted individuals at length usually follow them.

With current business proceeding at an extraordinarily low volume, there is a tendency to establish an equilibrium on the prevailing basis of widespread unemployment and only fractional usage of plant and equipment. The credit expansion plan of the Federal Reserve System is a silent, almost invisible force operating slowly against the tendency to create balance at the bottom, and seeking to turn business upward.

Failing to make due allowance for statistical lag, the average executive is scornful of the new credit policy, but the wideawake should recognize that it may become increasingly hazardous to assume that the present unsatisfactory status of trade and industry will be frozen into a lasting pattern for the future.

INDEX TURNS UP

In connection with the golden anniversary of Dow, Jones & Co., purveyors of Wall street intelligence, Hugh Bancroft, the president, said:

"Victories of America through the crises of 50 years, by their very repetition, vitalize confidence that the national difficulties of the present will surely fade."

Against the welter of immediately visible adverse economic trends, recent strengthening of commodity prices may be a symptom of far-reaching importance. In spite of the popular, but thoroughly stupid, assumption that commodity prices are headed definitely toward zero, the Fisher index of commodity prices at wholesale, like the Annalist index, turned slightly upward for the week ended June 24. It had been previously declining since March 11.

The sensitive price structure is still disturbed by the impact of politics. Democratic keynoters remind capitalists of the travail of the last three years, which they conclude fails to support the Republican claims toward perpetuating prosperity. Unquestionably the depression will be thoroughly exhumed this summer, but forward looking investors and executives will be more concerned with the possibilities for recovery than with the exploitation of water which has already passed under the bridge.

Advertising Boosts Richman Bros. Sales

An increase in business attributed to proper advertising and favorable prices is reported by Nathan G. Richman, head of Richman Brothers Company. Announcement of a reduction in prices of suits to $18.50, a new low level for Richman clothes, Mr. Richman said, proves that, "if with the right prices you advertise properly in newspapers the public will buy."

Storage Gasoline Shows Big Decline

NEW YORK, June 29.—Domestic crude oil output during the week ended June 25 averaged 2,156,100 barrels daily, or a drop of 41,450 barrels daily from the week preceding, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Gasoline stocks during the week declined 2,349,000 barrels to 38,913,000 barrels.

U. S. Gold Increased In Day's Movement

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—The nation's monetary gold stock was increased yesterday by imports of $1,000,100 from Canada and $24,200 from Mexico. There were no exports and no change in earmark account.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 29.—Uncertainties continued to beset the bond market today. After several days of comparative firmness the United States government list eased moderately in rather active trading. Japanese bonds continued to sag in sympathy with the declining yen. The Austrians, Australians, Colombians and some of the Chileans fin'd. The French and British sections followed a narrow range.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(A.P.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Lynn Tries to Get Another Job, Makes Appointment With David Dwight

CHAPTER XIX.

Lynn worked late at the office that day. At home Jennie greeted her.

"Shopping for the little old trousseau? Better let me help," offered Jennie.

"You needn't bother. I don't think we're going to be married." Lynn pushed her small hat off her forehead and sat down limply.

"What? Haven't had a row, have you? What about—Margaret Sanger or the family budget?"

"No." Lynn smiled faintly; it was impossible to resist Jennie in her idiotic moods. "Sarah just told me the bank is letting married women out, that's all. But it's enough to keep me single."

"Well, the dirty bums!" exclaimed Jennie sincerely. "You poor kid, all keyed up to the blushing-bride act and now—bang, once more a spinster. Gee, I'm sorry, Lynn. Couldn't you get another job?"

"I've thought of that. But it's too risky, Jennie." Lynn answered slowly. "You know people aren't getting hired by the carload. There might not be a place for me in another bank; employers are letting out, not taking in. And I'm not well enough trained for anything else—I mean, I couldn't get as much money. I'd get less, I guess."

"That's so." Jennie nodded her yellow head. "Have you told Tom?"

"No. I haven't seen him. He's coming up here tonight."

"I'll ankle out," Jennie offered.

"It's not necessary." Lynn told her wearily, wishing that she would stay. Perhaps if she stayed it would be easier to "tell Tom."

"No, but I've got a date," Jennie told her importantly, "and boy, is it hot!"

"Slim?" asked Lynn with a flicker of interest.

"Not that kind of hot. A guy named Meyer."

"Meyer?"

JENNIE EXPLAINS

"That's the moniker." Jennie clasped her arms about her knees and her heavy-lidded narrow eyes shone between the thick, mascaraed lashes. "He's the merchandise man for Meyer & Carberg, the big department store in Chicago. He's a partner, see—the son of the original big shot. He comes on now and then with his buyers to look the town over and see that they don't shoot too much of his wad. He used to be a buyer himself, when he wasn't a stock boy and a ribbon clerk and an aisle manager or what have you.

"He came into the place this morning with Raeburn, his dress buyer. He sat behind the table and tapped on it with a pencil till I thought I'd go goofy. He kept looking at me, see? And when the buyer was talking to Madame this Meyer gives me a buzz. He told me I could model clothes like nobody's business and wondered why I wasn't on the stage.

"I told him I had been, thank you, but if I waited for a show job I'd be the best-looking woman on the bread line. That handed him a big laugh. He says, 'How would you like to show me the town tonight, Miss Le Grande?' and I said, 'Oke with me, Big Boy. He's coming for me in a car," Jennie concluded.

"I thought," said Lynn, troubled, "that you girls didn't go out with the buyers."

WAITS FOR TOM

"We do and we don't. If we want to and like 'em, we do. Why not? We don't have to, if that's what you mean. He isn't a buyer, anyway; he's just about the whole works. I asked Madame about him afterwards."

"What does he look like?" Lynn wanted to know.

"He's not as tall as I am," Jennie said regretfully, "but he's a swell dresser. Dark; little mustache; smokes gold-tipped cigarets; has a platinum watch and doesn't wear rings."

"Single?"

"I didn't ask, but of course not. He must be about 45. No one with his speed and his money is going to be 45 without being grabbed off by some little girl trying to get along. But that's no skin off my nose. Good Lord, I'll have to get busy! I want to set my wave—had it done day before yesterday in my lunch hour and my hair's as straight as a drink already." She departed for the bedroom.

Lynn rose after a time and took her outdoor things off. She'd get herself a glass of milk and some crackers, and then wait for Tom.

Wait for Tom?

She knew that as far as loving him went she would wait an eternity. But that didn't promise that she'd be happy or contented—waiting.

He came early and she knew by the sound of his step on the stair that he was coming to her, happy, eager, full of their plans . . .

How should she tell him?

She did so by bursting into tears when he walked in the open door; by running to him and burying her head on his shoulder, to his dismay and astonishment.

"Tom."

SUGGESTS ANOTHER JOB

'Hey, what's up?" he asked, concerned. "Here, easy does it, Lynn, darling, what is it? Not—not bad news from home?"

"No." She controlled herself a little; told him.

There was a silence. After a moment he said heavily: "Well, that tears it. I couldn't ask you to—"

She said, after a pause, "Tom, it isn't that I'm so selfish I wouldn't be willing to live on your salary. But things cost so much. We couldn't save. You'd be tied down and nervous and worried all the time; you'd never get ahead in the circumstances. You know that."

"If— Oh, you're right," he told her gloomily. He swore fluently for several seconds; said gruffly, "Sorry, but—"

After a moment she suggested hesitantly: "I could try for another job."

'Sure you could," he agreed, radiant. "If you could get a job where they didn't have these dumb ideas about married women—gee, that would be great! I can't give up hoping," he told her, low.

"Nor I."

In his arms she forgot how risky it was to look for the jobs that seemed nowadays to be nonexistent; and how she had set her heart against the sort of position in which she would not be happy, for which she had not been trained. For this moment, at least, let ambition go by the board; a job, any job that would enable them to live, and live together.

REMINDED OF DWIGHT

Two weeks went by. A Saturday came and Jennie asked, crumpling a yellow telegraph blank in her long hand:

"Lynn, you look rotten. What have you been doing to yourself?"

"Nothing. Trying to work and look for another job at the same time."

"Have you asked David Dwight to help you?" Jennie wanted to know. She unfolded the telegram again. Mr. Meyer, of Meyer & Carberg, would be in town over Sunday. Would Jennie dine with him? Would she!

"I hadn't thought of him. Do you suppose he would——? Oh, no," said Lynn; "I don't like to ask him."

"Don't be a sap. He'll find something for you to do," prophesied Jennie.

"Is that wire from the Chicago boy friend?"

"It is." Jennie chuckled. On the first occasion she had gone out with Meyer to dinner, show and supper, she had come home to tell Lynn all about it—the food, the liquor, the seats, the service, the favors. "Some spender. Married, but a widower. How's that for a break?"

"Jennie, you wouldn't marry him?" Lynn had gasped.

"Why not? Do you think I want to model the rest of my life? Not that I could. I'd end up scrubbing offices. Not me!"

"But you wouldn't have to marry——"

"Meyer? Well, no; and won't get a chance, more's the pity, I suppose. There are other men, of course. Poor men—and I'd go on working. Or I'd end in a walk-up doing diapers. Not this baby! When I marry, if I do, there has to be money and a wad of it," Jennie had announced.

There was no arguing with her. Lynn saw Jennie toss the telegraph blank into the wastebasket. Then she forgot it. Odd that she had not thought of David Dwight. He had said—what had he said?—that he was her friend; that she could count on him. And she had believed him. She had seen him once since the night of the party. One night when he had taken her to dinner and a play. She and Tom had had words about it. Then he had gone away on business; to Washington, she remembered. She had told him nothing of her present preoccupation.

If he were back now!

She telephoned him at the penthouse that night while Jennie was dressing for her engagement. And he was in.

"Lynn," his vibrant voice came over the wire, "my dear, how very sweet of you to call me. I'm just back."

She said hesitantly, "There is something about which I want to ask your advice. I thought perhaps if I could see you—next week—I could come upstairs to your office."

"Of course. Shall we say Monday after your work is over? I'll wait for you—and will you dine with me afterwards?"

She hung up presently. Jennie, shamelessly listening, poked her head in at the door.

"You're going up to see him?"

"Monday."

"What did I tell you?" And Jennie, accoutered, danced out to her duty, which was to make merry on a merchandising man's Saturday night off.

Synopsis

Lynn Harding is young, pretty and ambitious for a career in the Seacoast Bank and Trust, but when she meets Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice presidents, love quickly makes her forget the career. Both realize they cannot marry and live on Tom's salary and he will not hear of Lynn's keeping her position. That is their situation when Lynn meets the famous lawyer, David Dwight, through Sarah Dennet, her chief at the bank. Twenty years before he had been Sarah's fiance, but discarded her to marry a woman of wealth and position. Tom objects to Dwight's interest in Lynn. Following a quarrel, the young couple plan to marry. Tom agrees to Lynn's continuing her work. They spend Sunday together in Tom's apartment, planning their honeymoon. Lynn's hopes fade when she learns from Sarah that the bank does not want married women.

Now Go On

"I could try for another job," Lynn told Tom.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Once again the big Schenley Theater, located in Oakland, was filled to capacity last Saturday for the regular meeting of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

The members were entertained by the pupils of Miss Dunn's School of Dancing. The show was opened by Adele Yoria, Mercedes Brinker and Irene Maloney in a song and dance number. They were followed by Vera Krumim, dressed in a pretty Russian costume of red and white, who danced a difficult Russian volka. Adele Yoria sang a solo, and Helen Wilson danced. Others who entertained were Dodo Checco, Rosella Dugo, Irene Reardon, Virginia McMeekin and Jane Ovcoman.

BAND ENTERTAINS

Before the stage show the youngsters were entertained by the Schenley Junior Komic Club Band. The band was organized last fall and since then has made great strides towards supremacy in boys' bands. A week ago Saturday they played a one-day engagement at the Willows, Oakmont.

M. M. Wear, manager of the Washington Theater, where the Junior Komic Club meets, announced to the youngsters Saturday that a minstrel show would be organized and that rehearsals would start this week.

Thais Bowers, Velma and Virginia McVehil, Marjorie Carpenter, Gypsy Kintz, Marion Kemp, Myrtle Sholton, Billy Brownlee, Donna Fay Walker, Thelma Santag, Jean Anderson, Gale Hartzell, Ethel Grinnage, Charlene Hartzell, Betty Jean Haught, Betty George, Margaret Brimingham, Ruth Farrell, Gertrude McKahan, Stan Conselmi, Jimmy Miller, Stanley Wolfe, Roger Doyle and Mary Jane Wood entertained the members of the Washington Chapter with songs, dances and recitations.

PICNIC JULY 14

All those who attended the meetings last week were given ticket No. 3 in the series. Transportation will be furnished to and from Kennywood and each child is assured a good time.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, date and year of your birth, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

JERICO BOYS HAVE THE FIRST LAUGH

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Last evening the young folks had their minds set on chivaraing Woody Wilson and his bride. They saw Woody at the barber shop, got his car together with his suit case and stored it in a barn.

About 7 o'clock the crowd got the newlyweds, marched them down to the Bush Hotel. First, each was taken in separate rooms and were made to put on pajamas and brought out where Mel Beecher could apply facial makeup which consisted of black and red. They then were taken in cars together with 50 other young folks to Stockton, where they were made to distribute picnic bills.

There were a bunch of lowbrows who took it on theirselves to rotten egg the groom and in this event began throwing eggs at the Jerico folks, hitting several ladies and young men as well as some of the small boys.

This was a cowardly, dastardly deed and if a town such as Stockton, which derives a good trade from these parts, will allow such dastardly cowardice to prevail in their city, then it is high time we as a group of law abiding citizens pass up the town and let it alone. What we want to impress on the minds of the city of Stockton is the people of Jerico Springs are very indignant over lowbrows of your city being allowed to break up an innocent law abiding fun making party that were out for a good time.

However, the crowd came back home all bespeckled and finally were invited to the home of the bride, where each and every one were treated with candy and cigars, leaving at a late hour, wishing the newlyweds a happy and prosperous journey down life's pathway of time.

Jefferson's Democracy Would Be Good for THIS Convention

Yesterday's session of the Democratic convention was marked by a grievous defeat of the people in their never-ending struggle against the astute forces of privilege and financial power.

The iniquitous two-thirds rule which for a century has kept the party of Thomas Jefferson in bondage to non-democratic forces, and time after time has resulted in its defeat, was adopted by the convention.

True, the report of the committee on rules contained a recommendation that in the next convention of the party, four years from now, the rule should be reconsidered with a view to its abrogation and the substitution of majority control.

But the golden opportunity of the PRESENT to put the party of the democracy upon a democratic basis has been lost,—wrested away apparently by a group of determined and skillful strategists.

The prospects of a stirring victory for principle are extinguished, and the party is left to a resumption of its melancholy but familiar trek,—back to the House of Morgan.

The clear majority which Franklin Roosevelt at the moment commands, will be steadily sapped and mined and gnawed away.

Minority candidates will be turned loose in the paddock. Each will be given a little run. Support will be switched, first to this man and then to that, as the relative strength of the second choices is gauged.

As the convention's resistance ebbs, the minority's confidence will grow until the time arrives when it is felt to be safe to reveal the real choice of the men behind the convention, and who know precisely what they want.

One sometimes wonders why, after all, the words of Thomas Jefferson are cited so continually in Democratic conventions.

To Jefferson the principle of majority control was the essence of democracy—the central tenet of his faith.

The Roosevelt delegates who purposed restoring this principle to the practice of the Democratic party were on the right path.

Back to the Farm

Local Man Suggests More Practical Program for Return of Workers to the Soil.

The back-to-the-farm movement has raised a storm of controversy over the practicability of returning unemployed workers to the cultivation of the soil as a solution of the present emergency. Those opposing the plan assert that it is ridiculous to spend money to put men on abandoned farms when the present surplus of commodities and low prices make farming a losing business. Those favoring the movement declare that it is not anticipated that the returned farmers will make money but that they will produce enough to keep themselves from hunger.

J. Eugene Beck has made a new proposal in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph. His plan appears to overcome objections to the original movement and also to provide immediate relief at no expense.

At the present time, the price the farmer gets for what he produces will not allow him to hire help at a fixed price. He does have plenty to eat and a place for a helper to sleep, but no money. Mr. Beck proposes that the idle city man and the farmer be brought together. His letter says:

"I should say there would be hundreds, perhaps thousands, of farmers within a radius of 100 miles of Pittsburgh, who would be only too glad to get a helper, perhaps two or more of them, in exchange for bed and board, and possibly a little change for tobacco. I believe the farmer would gladly drive the distance to the city to get his man if he had the proper clearing house.

"If the Welfare or other association would open an office with a competent person in charge, compiling complete data on the farmer and his farm, and the same record of the helper applicant, I believe this would relieve the county and city of a dead loss, now caused by supporting unemployed men, who would be glad to have an opportunity to work for their keep on a farm."

Pennies Must Be Watched

Council Points Out to Mayor Kline the Need of Economy Because Taxes Come Slowly.

Coming events that cast their shadows before are tentatively forecast as eventualities in a resolution by Council calling the attention of Mayor Kline to the necessity of strict economy all along the line of city activities. Expenditures must be watched if there is to be enough money to meet payrolls and appropriations, said W. Y. English, chairman of the finance committee, presenting the resolution for adoption.

Mr. English said that delinquency in payment of taxes and water rentals was an indication of what might be expected, and that caution would be necessary in order to get through the year. The resolution, itself, directed attention to ordinance provisions as to lost time, sickness and furloughs of employes.

It is not always possible to see fiscal problems clearly in advance, and it is to be hoped that the future will prove to be more cheerful. The intimation of the resolution is that everything will be all right if only we watch the pennies as well as the dollars. That ought to be acceptable to everybody.

Foreshadowing the Fourth

Public Safety Director Says Fireworks Ordinance Will Be Strictly Enforced.

The Fourth of July approaches and the annual apprehension concerning the effect of the fireworks phase of celebration of Independence Day has set in. The answer to the fear is answered in Pittsburgh by regulation of the sale and use of pyrotechnical materials through a new ordinance that will be strictly enforced, according to Public Safety Director Clark.

The ordinance allows restricted sale of fireworks this week, and until and including July 4, by persons who have paid $50 for a permit. The ordinance appears to have the purpose of limiting the articles to be sold in the interest of safety. Large firecrackers and skyrockets as well as all revolvers, roman candles and lighted balloons are prohibited.

Yet no ordinance can prevent fireworks from being dangerous. Especially dangerous is the private use of them. Public displays in places where there is little danger, and under the direction of persons skilled in the handling the explosive pieces, are much more attractive and satisfactory.

Since fireworks will be sold to more or less irresponsible persons (the ordinance permits sale to children of 12 and upwards) it behooves everybody to be watchful lest we have a return of the deadly situation that caused a nation-wide demand for "a safe and sane Fourth."

The Overlord

(Copyright, 1932.)

There was a time when the underworld
Lived down to its sordid name,
Its voice was hushed and its flag was furled
And it tried to conceal its shame.

It flaunts in the face of the law today
And it towers above the land,

And even the courts of justice sway
To the strength of its grisly hand.

Loudly now from its frowning hill
Its insolent threats are hurled.
The land is under its heel and still
It is known as the *under*world.

What Women Don't Tell

If only a woman would stop to count 10 before speaking, every time she gets angry, she could think up a lot more cutting things to say.

* * *

Scientists say that kissing spreads microbes. Well—most of these summer heart-affairs going the rounds are about the size of a microbe.

* * *

At this heady season of the year, a man can change from one love to another and from one woman to another, as quickly and painlessly as a woman can change the color of her hair.

A philanderer would be less dangerous to women, if there were not always just a little warming sincerity in his eyes and his love-making—the hall-mark of the perfect artist.

* * *

The old-fashioned man had to break through a girl's shyness and a lot of Victorian reserve in order to kiss her; but, nowadays, when a man kisses a girl he merely has to penetrate several layers of make-up.

* * *

There is nothing which will revive and stimulate a man's interest in a woman, like making up mind to tell her, "Farewell, ever!"

A man's second wife seldom nags him, because she knows that if his first one couldn't teach him what ash-trays, clothes-hooks and shoe-racks were FOR, he is just a hopeless case.

* * *

It makes a woman feel almost antique, if she can remember when her husband used to hook her evening gown up the back, instead of powdering her vertebrae down to the waistline.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 29.—Several hundred claim to have known O. Henry intimately. At least a dozen editors boast of discovering him. The truth is the writer had no intimates save his daughter. No editor ever paid him a social call or vice versa. He was the true lone wolf.

Perhaps the three men who knew him best were Bob Davis, the late William Johnston and Roy L. McCardell. Yet he did not chum with any one of them. He circled about in side streets, lived in forlorn rooming houses or at the Caledonia in the 20's.

He ate alone, mostly in the stool and counter places, specializing on chili con carne, a favorite dish acquired in his Texas days. According to the best descriptions, he was fat, self-effacing, blonde, freckled to his feet, and looked like a western railroad engineer as nearly as he could be "typed."

His aloofness was largely because he did not want it known—or was afraid it was—that he had been in the Columbus (O.), prison with Al Jennings. Yet it was everybody's secret. Some gossip of the day was dog enough to print it and this in last years made him even more of a recluse.

Many believe Nelson Hersh, a Sunday editor, was O Henry's real discoverer, if there was one. Hersh picked up a railroad magazine from a train seat and, tumbling idly through the pages, came upon a story, signed O. Henry. He was gripped by its sparkle and charm.

Reaching his office, he sent two cubs to find O. Henry. They had about given up the quest and were glooming in a saloon when a listening bartender said: "I know the guy." They found him, and inquiring: "Is your name O. Henry?" received the reply: "That's a name I write under."

O. Henry agreed to write some stories, but flatly refused to visit the newspaper office where Hersh worked. He was living in a shabby $3-a-week room in East Twenty-fourth street. Sometimes the story would not even be started on the day it was scheduled to arrive. He had no sense of time

Doubtless the greatest of story plotters, O. Henry never read what he had written. When he finished a yarn, he would say in his modulated voice to the waiting boy: "There's a story that will fill the space." He seemed more interested in filling the space than thrilling readers.

The story that was the light under the bushel and sent free to the railroad magazine was his famous "Gifts of the Magi." Although his perpetual state was stinging poverty, he refused to sell his wares to any editor who returned his stuff during bleak years.

Few literary improvidents had so small appreciation of money values, even when a measure of prosperity came. O. Henry owed $3,000 advanced by a magazine when he died, and was always overdrawn in editorial rooms. He gave largely of his earnings to derelicts he met in night prowls. Gambling, too, took much of his writing awards, for he was lured always by faro bank.

The southwest targht him love of faro, especially Texas and New Orleans. Despite his frailities, he was a literary purist, as all truly great writers are. Once called the "American De Maupassant" he retorted heatedly: "I never wrote a dirty line in my life." His sole assets at his passing were $47. Weary of life's buffetings, he murmured: "Turn on the light! I don't want to go home in the dark"—and died.

Cost of Prohibition

Many Millions of Dollars Poured Into Unsuccessful Effort to Stop Lawlessness.

By JULIUS G. BERENS,
Financial Editor,
New York American

THE average American business man has come to the conclusion that prohibition is an ECONOMIC FARCE.

He is astounded that a potential source of vast governmental revenue is being neglected—especially in a time of universal economic stress.

The American business man absolutely opposes a condition which allows untold millions of dollars profit to lawbreakers in a traffic which, under legitimate supervision, would LIGHTEN TAXPAYERS' BURDENS BY HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS!

The American business man will not tolerate continuation of a condition forcing him to carry the prohibition racketeer!

THE business man's analysis of prohibition involves a sober insight into the figures and facts. He studies the problem as he would one in his own business.

The business man sees many millions of dollars poured into an UNSUCCESSFUL effort to stem the tide of lawlessness.

He sees this money coming out of an already overburdened public pocketbook.

He recognizes, too, that that money has been WASTED, and that the waste is doubly irritable in a time of great economic privation.

The business man realizes that the tide of lawlessness inherent in prohibition overflows into legitimate business channels, with a staggering extraneous loss incidental to prohibition.

No one yet has been able to establish the extent of this extra loss, but its magnitude cannot be disputed; business men, best of all classes of the population, appreciate this angle of prohibition.

In dollars and cents, the economic cost of prohibition experiment is COLOSSAL.

THE business man wants the experiment written off to profit and loss, just as he would write off an unsuccessful experiment in his own business.

An outstanding industrialist leading the anti-prohibitionist struggle, estimates that the United States, by following the British liquor taxation schedules, would have secured an addition to its income approximately $1,736,000,000 yearly over the past 12 years.

THIS WOULD HAVE BEEN SUFFICIENT TO RETIRE THE ENTIRE FEDERAL DEBT AND TO HAVE ACCUMULATED A SURPLUS ABOUT EQUAL TO THE FOREIGN WAR DEBTS TO US.

How mighty attractive to a business man in a period of vast governmental deficits!

How does the business world view the latest swing in the tide of resentment against prohibition? Read what the American Bankers' Association Journal, organ of the banking community, states:

"Clarification of the prohibition controversy as, in effect, really a question of the 'repeal of bootlegging', ALSO DESERVES LISTING AMONG CONSTRUCTIVE BUSINESS FACTORS because of its promise ultimately to lead to a lessening of government expenditure due to crime, to restore a fruitful and uncomplaining source of government revenue, to eliminate a cause of social disorder and to put back into the hands of legitimate trade and industry the economic activities now conducted under illicit auspices."

GOOD MANNERS

By Winifred Black

Once upon a time there was a nun in a convent. She was a princess or something before she was a nun. You'd never think it to look at her, but she was.

And she gave lessons on etiquette. You know the sort of thing about your hostess, and your guest, and what kind of notes to write to what sort of people, and how to tell a perfect gentleman from a hoodlum the minute you looked at him, and how many bridesmaids to have at a really smart wedding?

Oh, no! Not that kind of etiquette. She gave lessons on the etiquette of speech, and manner and most of all the etiquette of the heart.

When the girls were going home for Easter, there were always a few who lived too far away to go to their own homes for such a few days, and they were apt to be invited to someone else's home for the little vacation.

The nun who used to be a princess always gave her famous "Manners of Guests" talk the night before vacation began, and one of the girls who knew this talk by heart told me about it.

"Mother Aloysius was a little bit of a thing," she said, "and she wore great, big round spectacles; and how she could make those spectacles flash when she turned them on you!"

"When you come home from your visit to your friend's house," said Mother Aloysius, "some dull, stupid, ignorant girl, who doesn't know any better, will get you out into the garden for a walk up and down the long archway, and she will say to you sweetly:

"'Are Gertrude's mother and father rich?

"'Do they live in a fine house?

"'How many servants have they got?

"'Are they in society?'

"Now listen very carefully, and I'll tell you just what to do about that. Catch your breath in utter amazement and dismay. Turn and look the girl who is talking to you straight up and down from the tips of her toes to the top of her head. Don't look angry. Don't look reproachful. Just act as if that girl were some kind of a beetle or other, and you didn't know what to make of her . . . Then smile a bewildered, vague smile and say quite softly: 'I didn't ask.'

"That girl will never get you into a corner again to ask you questions about your friend and her home."

I wish the nun who used to be a princess could open a school of her own, and teach the whole world a few of these rather discriminating manners; don't you?
